Oil tank farms create a 'powder keg'

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Residents of Romulus may not know it, but they are sitting on a power keg that could be ignited at almost any time.

According to Fire Chief John Wilhide: "Romulus has one of the biggest potentials in the state for a disastrous explosion and fire."

Wilhide said the recent explosion and fire in Taylor at a Clark tank farm would be pale in comparison to what could happen if one of the many tank farms in Romulus went up in flames.

Thousands of Taylor residents were evacuated from the area surrounding the tank farm, as firemen toiled for two days to put out the blaze, fed by some 200,000 gallons of gasoline.

The fire started when a large tank was filled past capacity and the fumes from gasoline spilling over the sides floated to a nearby trailer court and were ignited from the pilot light of mobile home furnace.

The trailer exploded and burned; no one was home at the time. Speedy evacuation of nearby residents and alert work by firemen prevented any deaths or injuries.

Wilhide said Romulus is home to several large gasoline tanks and propane gas farms. For example, he pointed out, the Total tank farm south of I-94 on Inkster Road is larger than the Clark tank farm in Taylor, capable of housing more than 11,000,000 gallons of gasoline when filled to capacity.

A year ago last summer, the Total tank farm actually was the scene of an almost identical replay of what took place in Taylor, the fire chief said.

A huge gasoline tank was filled to the brim and began spilling over the sides due to a human error and a heavy fog of gasoline fumes was swept across Inkster Road by easterly winds, the chief said.

About 2,000 residents in Taylor were evacuated from their homes, traffic on I-94 was stopped for about two hours, and firemen from Romulus and Taylor rushed to the scene with five pieces of fire fighting equipment in the event fire broke out, Wilhide recalled.

"Any spark could have set off a terrific explosion and fire, even from the engines of a car or truck on I-94, but somehow nothing happened," the fire chief said.

Later, authorities investigating the near tragedy, speculated that the gasoline mixture was too rich to be ignited easily by a spark or flame.

So thick was the cloud of gasoline fumes that engulfed the Inkster-I-94 area that day that more than 20 persons were sent to area hospitals, suffering from side effects of the noxious gas. All 13 fire fighters from Romulus Station No. 2 at Middlebelt and Ecorse roads, about seven persons from Total, and several Taylor firemen received hospital treatment. None were injured seriously and were released a few hours later.

"An automatic shutoff and alarm would have prevented the near mishap at Total," said Wilhide, who decried the efforts of lobbyists at state and national levels to cut down on costs of the big oil companies.

"These lobbyists are doing everything they can to keep safety equipment from being installed on tank farms and tank trucks, so the big oil firms can keep costs down."

Wilhide said a resolution introduced two weeks ago by Romulus Councilman Ed Rush "was a step in the right direction".

Rush's resolution would seek more strict regulations on the storage of gasoline in city tank farms in view of what took place in Taylor.

Wilhide, who attended a meeting of state fire marshals and fire chiefs from across the state to review proposed legislation on the storage of flammable liquids, both in tank farms and in trucks which haul them, referred specifically to House Bill 4818 which would amend the state's fire prevention act to more effectively monitor storage of flammable liquids. The bill also would call for certification of fire inspectors who check gasoline

Photo shows several of the huge tanks at the Total tank farm on Inkster Road just south of the I-94 Expressway in Romulus. When filled to capacity, more than 11,000,000 gallons of gasoline can be stored at the tank farm. In the summer of 1978, an overfilled tank caused a heavy fog of gasoline fumes to be blown across Inkster Road, causing the evacuation of some 2,000 Taylor residents. Romulus Fire Chief John Wilhide said Romulus has the greatest potential of any community in the state for a disastrous gasoline explosion and fire. Cal Dille (above) is a warehouse manager at the tank farm. ANP photo.

Renewal lots set for development

After 13 years of red tape and some $6 million in federal grants, the way was cleared last week to make 284 urban renewal lots available to Romulus residents in the Wayne-Beverly roads area.

Clerk Leonard J. Folmar was authorized by the City Council to sign papers marking the completion of the urban renewal project.

The entire urban renewal area contains 164 acres. In addition to the 284 vacant lots, 120 other lots are now occupied by dwellings. The area is bounded by Chamberlain, Van Born, Beverly and Howe roads.

Also located on the urban renewal plat is a multiple dwelling development site, located on 15.85 acres of land.

Since 1966, work has been done to demolish abandoned structures, clear and land, re-locate all sewer lines, and perform all necessary for the overall project. Last year, the city received an $80,000 federal grant for site development for the new senior citizens high-rise structure going up in the area of Bibbins and Shook streets. Another $70,000 federal grant last year will enable the city to market the urban renewal lots in the Wayne-Beverly area, Folmar said.

Instrumental in cutting away much of the red tape associated with the federally paid for urban renewal plat were Folmar and Charles Lowther, city attorney.

When next spring arrives, Folmar said, four contractors will begin construction of new homes in the urban renewal area, he said.

"This project will help the overall development of the Romulus community," the clerk noted.

Urban renewal projects are no longer being financed by the federal government, Folmar said, but instead financing has been given to communities through Community Block Grants.

Jon Stevens becomes Huron High's principal

Huron High School, as of Monday, has a new principal.

Jon Stevens, who has been administrator for the Rockford Public Schools, located north of Grand Rapids, for five years, succeeds Dr. Theos Anderson as head of the high school.

Stevens also taught on the secondary level in East Jordan, Mich. He holds bachelor's, master's and educational specialist degrees from Central University.

Hired under a 1-year contract at a salary of $30,000 a year, Stevens, his wife and two sons will move into the Huron School District in the near future.

Dr. Anderson had been high school principal for the last five years.

Explosion levels unoccupied home on Lisa Drive

A mysterious explosion ripped through a vacant Romulus residence early Sunday morning, shaking nearby houses and leaving investigators in a quandary as to what caused it.

The house at 9724 Lisa Drive is owned by Richard Wojcik of Belleville, who also owns the Five Points Bar in Romulus.

Investigators at the scene first attributed the blast to a gas buildup inside the house, but official comment is being withheld pending a complete investigation.

Adding to the confusion is information supplied by a neighbor who told police he saw two men enter the residence and stay for about a half hour Saturday night. Wojcik told police he did not know the identity of the two men, but said he has had workmen at the residence periodically.

Romulus Fire Chief John Wilhide, who called the explosion one of the worst to a residential structure in his memory said: "We do not feel the explosion was an accident at this time."

The investigation is continuing. Wilhide explained that a portion of the gas line to the furnace was missing and could conceivably have allowed gas to build up inside the house.

Bob Nightingale, a neighbor who lives across the street, said the force of the blast lifted his house off its foundation and left cracks in walls and mouldings.

To be on the safe side, Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. shut off gas service to the house. The company said no gas leaks were found along the service lines.

Small fires set by the explosion were extinguished by the Romulus Fire Department. The blast leveled the 1-story structure.

Neighborhood residents said the Wojcik house had been vacant since November when Wojcik reportedly evicted tenants for nonpayment of rent. They reported several persons walking in and out of the house at various times, painting and making repairs.

Kaboom!

The investigation is continuing into a mysterious explosion Sunday that leveled a ranch-style home on Lisa Drive in Romulus. The home, owned by Richard Wojcik of Belleville, was totally destroyed by the explosion. Neighboring homes suffered minor damage. The home was unoccupied at the time of the blast. — ANP photo by Tom Greenwood.

Juveniles' arrests break up theft ring

The arrest of two Romulus juveniles by two Wayne County Sheriff's deputies led to the recovery of $3,300 in stolen goods and broke up a theft ring of adults and juveniles at work in Romulus, Warren, Garden City, Dearborn and Howell.

Det. Don Cox said the two juvenile suspects were arrested following a tip in early December from a resident of the Royal Village Trailer Court on Van Born Road, east of Middlebelt Road.

The informant told police he saw two juveniles enter a nearby trailer and leave with several items. He then followed them in his car. Officers Charles Baker and Ernest Lee investigated and found forced entry into the trailer.

The two officers got the address from the informant and arrested the two juveniles. According to police, the two juveniles had just moved into Romulus from a neighboring suburb.

Questioning of the two juvenile suspects resulted in officers learning the names of eight others involved in about 10 breaking and enterings committed over a wide area during October and November 1979, Cox said. The stolen property was stored in homes in Romulus, Warren, Garden City, Dearborn and Howell, Cox said.

Recovered by police were two shotguns, several rifles, four television sets, three stereo sets, assorted jewelry, several CBs and several wall clocks.

"From the looks of the items recovered, it appeared that the thieves would strip a home or trailer of all of its valuable contents, if they had time," Cox said.

Further investigation led police to believe that they had uncovered a ring of organized breaking and enterings, committed by juveniles and supervised by a group of adults. Stolen merchandise was sold by juveniles to the adults, who in turn either kept the stolen items or sold them for profit, Cox said.

Blast injures Hess

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Harold Hess, 52, former Sumpter Township attorney and a practicing lawyer in the Belleville-Sumpter area for many years, was critically injured New Year's Eve as he attempted to launch a skyrocket for his children at a neighbor's house.

Hess, whose life support functions are being maintained by a respirator, is in the intensive care unit at Wayne County General Hospital.

Sgt. Dale Orth of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department said he arrived at the home of Jim West on Clark Road, near Savage Road, about 10:20 p.m. Dec. 31 in response to a call for assistance.

Arriving there he found West cradling Hess whose head was bloodied and torn by what witnesses said was an exploding skyrocket.

Investigation disclosed that Hess had set off a skyrocket from a mortar-like tube for his three children and other children at the West home. Other adults were inside at the time, Orth said.

When the second skyrocket failed to go off, Orth said Hess probably used a flashlight to check the mortar's muzzle to see if the skyrocket's fuse had been lit. Apparently, the skyrocket detonated at that instant, striking Hess in the left forehead.

Hess reportedly was blinded in the accident. A portion of his nose and a section of the upper left side of his head also were blown away in the incident. Although his vital organs are functioning, doctors believe a large portion of the attorney's brain were blown away by the force of the explosion.

Hess has been in a deep coma since the accident, and little hope is held for his recovery.

Hess, who had been attorney for Sumpter Township for several years, was engaged in private practice and was well known in the area for his humanitarian acts. Friends said he often did legal work free for clients who could not afford to pay him for his services.

Hess was very active in the Belleville Lions Club, most recently when he helped organize a special Thanksgiving dinner for more than 200 needy area residents.

Assisting Orth at the scene of the tragic explosion were Detectives Frank Burton and Gerald Murphy who arrived at the West home a half hour later.

Tank farms' concentration creates a 'powder keg'

storage facilities, public buildings, factories, freight terminals and tank trucks.

"Inspection of tank trucks formerly was under the state fire marshals, but the governor cut the state police budget," Wilhide explained.

HB 4818 would require fire inspectors to check tank trucks, not only locally, but on a state-wide basis. Wilhide said local inspections of tank trucks can be avoided by owners moving them from the announced site of inspection to another location. But, under state-wide inspection, these relocated tank trucks would be caught by a fire inspector in another locality.

Wilhide admits to going to bed many nights wondering when a disaster involving gasoline storage facilities might hit the Romulus area.

Wilhide, a veteran fireman for nearly 20 years, emphasized the near disaster at Total in 1978 was not an isolated instance of the tinder box atmosphere existing in Romulus.

Three other explosions and fires occurred within the last nine years and, although serious, were contained and kept from developing into more tragic disasters.

In August 1975, a backhoe tooth accidentally cut open an underground pipeline carrying propane gas to the Sun Oil storage facilities on Northline Road, between Harrison and Inkster roads, Wilhide said.

It took firemen 16 hours to extinguish the 12-foot wide flaming torch that shot up out of the ground after the initial explosion, the fire chief said. Firemen remained on duty at the scene for 36 hours, he remembers.

Then, in 1972, a private Lear Jet struck the corner of a gasoline storage tank at the Union 76 tank farm at Wick and Middlebelt roads, starting a fire which lasted for 24 hours, he said.

In 1970, a 4-square-mile area was evacuated when an explosion and fire hit the Propane Service at Inkster and Ecorse roads, lasting nearly 10 hours before firemen put out the blaze.

In addition to the above gasoline and propane gas storage facilities, Wilhide noted other large tank farms — Shell, Wick Road between Middlebelt and Inkster roads; Western Eaton Chemical, south of Northline Road on Huron River Drive, which has some 10,000,000 gallons of flammable chemicals stored there; and Seibert Oxidormo Romulus Coatings, Wahrman Road between Eureka and Pennsylvania roads, where bulk flammable chemicals are stored.

"Besides all of the tank farms, Romulus has many, many truck terminals. These vehicles carry not only flammable liquids such as gasoline and propane gas, but such lethal products as cyanide, radioactive materials and mustard gas," the fire chief stressed.

These same dangerous materials also are carried by two railroad lines, one going east and west, and the other north and south. With pipelines from out of state pumping millions of gallons of flammable liquids into storage facilities in Romulus, the city literally is crisscrossed with a network of potential death-dealing situations. Wilhide said numerous other small storage facilities for flammable liquids also are housed in the city.

Should an explosion and fire set off a chain reaction of other fires and blasts in Romulus, the proximity of most storage facilities to I-94 and I-275, the two railroad lines and, more importantly, Detroit Metropolitan Airport, could set the stage for a conflagration that would rival an atomic explosion.

"In the old days, firemen went to the scene of a fire and put out the blaze with water and that was it," observed the fire chief. "Today, our men must be specially trained to handle fires where cyanide and chlorine gas fumes from all of the plastic and vinyl building materials and furniture can kill a man in a few seconds."

Wilhide stressed that today's firemen, even volunteers such as in Romulus, need to be "professionals" to cope with what could happen in the city should an unforeseen disaster strike.

Investigation continues

The fire which struck Morgan Manor in Romulus in the early hours of Dec. 14 and caused nearly $1 million in damages, remains a puzzle to investigating authorities.

Early speculation that a 4-year-old girl, playing with matches caused the fire was discarded by John Lewis, juvenile officer for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

Although the fire's origin was traced to the little girl's bedroom on the third floor of the building, Lewis and Romulus Fire Chief John Wilhide said no matches were found in the debris shoveled out of the burned apartment.

Authorities first thought the little girl was responsible when she was questioned and kept repeating the word "matches".

Intensive questioning of the girl's father, who volunteered and took a lie detector test, convinced Lewis that "no criminal intent" was involved on his part.

After his initial investigation, Bob Delaney, state fire marshal, turned the fire probe over to Lewis.

Lewis and Wilhide did turn up a possible cause of the costly blaze. The little girl's father had cleaned carpets in their apartment with flammable liquid, finishing about 12 midnight, some five hours before the fire was reported to the Romulus Fire Department.

"It's possible that an ash from his cigarette ignited the carpet and it smoldered for several hours," Wilhide commented.

The blaze displaced 24 families in BB and CC buildings. Most were relocated in vacant apartment units by Morgan Manor management.

The Romulus Fire Department, with the aid of a snorkel unit from Taylor, had the fire extinguished by 8 a.m. No one was injured, and a possible tragedy was averted through efforts of neighbors waking up each other.

Center attraction

Off to an excellent start, Romulus' cagers will play their first home game of 1980 Tuesday night when a highly-touted Ann Arbor Huron invades the Eagle gym. Coach Rod Hanna's troops were at Detroit Southwestern last night, taking on a Prospector quintet which is eyeing the Detroit city league championship. Above, Coach Hanna (brown suit, kneeling in center) confers with his players during a time out. Hanna and his cagers have won four of their six starts this season.

In Brief

The Westland Women's Employment Center and the YWCA of Western Wayne County will sponsor an Employment Seminar on Jan. 26 from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The seminar will be led by Carolyn Leich, assistant to the director of cooperative education at the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus, and will be held at the YWCA, 26279 Michigan Avenue, Inkster.

The seminar is specifically planned for women who are in a transitional period in their lives and are afraid they will get "stuck" in a low paying job. The focus will be placed on serious career planning and a look into the job market in the 1980s.

The fee is $3 per person. A snack will be provided at 12 noon. Participants are asked to register by Jan. 21. For registration information call 561-4110. Ask for Leslie Frederick or Kathy Shefferly.

The Romulus Recreation Department will sponsor a ski trip to Alpine Valley on Thursday, Jan. 31. The cost of the trip will be $15 and will include motor coach transportation and tow fees. A $10 deposit will be required, however, at the time you register for the trip.

Rental equipment will be available for $7 at Alpine Valley, and beginners will be required to take a ski lesson, costing $3.

Participants must be 18 years of age or older.

The deadline for registering is Jan. 25, and a minimum of 30 skiers are needed to make the trip possible. For further information call 941-0666, ext. 67.

Because of the success of the last Legal Aid visit, the Romulus Recreation Department has scheduled Jan. 24 as the next Legal Aid date.

If you are 60 years of age or older and need help with wills, deeds, Social Security, utility bills, estates, food stamps, private pensions, income tax, landlord-tenant problems or eviction notices, stop by the Romulus Recreation Department, 36516 Bibbins St., between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. that day.

A "coffee break", sponsored by the Kwik Helpers CB Club, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday at the Centurion Restaurant in Van Buren Township for the benefit of the David Yuhas family.

The young family of five was away from their home, a 100-year-old farmhouse located near Adrian, during the holidays, when a fire broke out, gutting it.

The couple and their three children, ages 19 months, 5 and 9 years, hope to locate on the property in a trailer until the spring, when they plan to rebuild the structure.

The home was uninsured. The club will be collecting donations and canned goods for the family, which had lived in Wayne until the move to Adrian, as well contribute the proceeds from its 50-50 raffle and hourly raffles. A check from the club, which has purchased all the prizes for the drawings, also will be among contributions for the Yuhas family.

The restaurant is located in the Lakewood Shopping Center at the corner of Rawsonville Road and the I-94 Expressway in Van Buren Township.

The Romulus Senior Center has arranged for Legal Aid to provide free services to the city's senior citizens.

Lawyers will be at the senior center, 36515 Bibbins St., from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Jan. 24. No appointment is necessary.

The Romulus Recreation Department and Supreme Courts will be holding racquetball sessions for women, the first beginning tomorrow at 11 a.m. A second class will start Jan. 17 at 1 p.m.

The fee for the class is $12 and includes four 1-hour lessons.

A league will be formed at the conclusion of the lessons, however, the instructional program is not a prerequisite for joining the league.

For further information contact Supreme Courts at 722-3190 or the recreation department at 941-0666.

The recreation department also is forming a men's early bird racquetball league at Supreme Courts, located at 6715 Brandt St. The league which will start Friday, will play every Wednesday and Friday mornings at 6:45 a.m.

Contact Supreme Courts or the recreation department to register.

Things that matter

Are these our 'last days'?

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

Rex Humbard is quoted as saying that the world will come to an end within three years. Many other evangelicals are making similar predictions. They say we are living in the Last Days.

Their sooth-saying is based on Bible prophecies. Events taking place today — the trouble in the Middle East, the moral decline in the West, famines in many parts of the world — are said to have been foretold in the Bible.

When these things come to pass, the "end time" is near, the Bible purportedly says.

But you can believe in Bible prophecies without believing they refer to things taking place in these times, according to one Bible scholar, Dr. John Trever of the Claremont (Calif.) School of Theology.

When the Bible prophets predicted coming events, Trever says, they are referring to events that would take place in the near future — usually within the lifetime of their hearers.

In other words, the Bible prophets weren't speaking to us in these days. "With the present conflicts in the Middle East, Christians are once again being flooded with claims that the ancient prophets predicted these events," Trever says.

He says he considers this practice "a serious breach of academic honesty and a violation of historical integrity."

He claims, for example, that God's pledge to Abraham to give the Promised Land to the patriarch's descendants was actually fulfilled in the time of Joshua.

"To claim that its fulfillment began with the partition of Palestine and the setting up of the state of Israel in 1948 is to misuse the Bible," Trever says.

He points to the present tense of the language God uses when speaking to Moses just before the Israelites entered Canaan under Joshua:

"It is not because of your merit that you are entering the land to occupy it ... to fulfill the promise which the Lord made to your forefathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob." (Deuteronomy 9:5)

Trever takes issue with many of the interpretations of Bible prophecy made by Hal Lindsey in his book, "The Late Great Planet Earth," a bestseller several years ago which is having a sudden revival in popularity.

Lindsey says: "It was revealed to Micah, 700 years before the birth of Christ, that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem: 'But thou, Bethlehem ... out of thee shall he come forth that is to be ruler in Israel.'"

Trever comments: "Scholars are divided about the actual place of Jesus' birth, for the evidence is indecisive. It is just as reasonable to suppose that the Micah passage was the source of the Christian tradition about Jesus' birth in Bethlehem as it is to claim that the tradition is based on known facts."

Trever points to John 7:42 which implies that some people thought Jesus was born in Galilee, 70 miles north of Bethlehem. Some skeptics of Jesus' Messiahship say in this passage: "The Scriptures say the Messiah will come from Bethlehem. How then can Jesus be the Messiah? He comes from Galilee."

Lindsey also considers Psalm 22 to be "one of the clearest prophecies about the sufferings of Jesus. The psalmist gives a detailed prediction of a person being crucified. Yet crucifixion as a way of punishment was not known at the time David wrote this."

But, says Trever, "There is no reason to assume this psalm is referring to crucifixion at all. The psalm is, like Job, dealing with the problem of suffering — in this case it is the lament of a seriously ill person. No doubt Jesus turned to it in his moment of greatest agony when he said, 'My God, why hast thou forsaken me?'"

Trever also maintains that the book of Revelation, often adduced by evangelicals who find the allusions and metaphors useful in interpreting contemporary events in terms of an impending end of the world, was written to be a steady influence on Christians suffering persecution in the First Century.

"Such repeated expressions as 'what soon must take place' and 'for the time is near' must stand as warnings," Trever says, "against applying the contents of the book to later centuries."

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9
Read Psalm 51: 1-12

"Let me hear the sounds of joy and gladness; you have crushed me and broken me, I will be happy once again." (Psalm 51:8 TEV)

After a hard day's work, I faced a long cross-country bus ride to visit my family for the weekend. I dreaded the trip and out of sorts as I stood in line to board the bus at the terminal.

In the line waiting with me were three people who were deaf-mutes. Curious, I watched them carry on a conversation in sign language. The young man and the older woman were joking with the young woman who had come to ride the bus. All three were smiling broadly; and as their fingers flew in intricate communication, they would break into uncontrollable, but silent laughter.

After watching them for a minute, I found to my surprise that I, too, was grinning. A warm glow had replaced the fatigue within me.

When I boarded the bus, the three people remained outside for a last bit of conversation. Only as I looked out the window at them did I notice that six or seven other people were watching the trio. The watchers all wore the same grin, refreshed for a moment by the silent happiness shared by the three.

PRAYER: Dear God, help us see the unguarded joys scattered through our lives. Thank You for such expressions of joy which remind us that the world You are creating is good. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: God sometimes speaks most loudly in silence.

Willow Metroparks gets new entrance roadway

Willow Metropark, a 1,525-acre site between New Boston and Flat Rock, will have a new entrance road to the park by mid-summer, according to William E. Kreger, who represents Wayne County on the 7-member HCMA Board of Commissioners.

A contact in the amount of $69,697.50 has been awarded to the J. D. Armstrong Landscape Co. of Fraser for construction of a half mile of roadway, a tolling booth and gate which will be located along South Huron Road, east of the I-275 Freeway.

For the past several years visitors have used the entrance located along Willow Road, only a few miles east of the Village of Willow between Waltz Road and Huron River Drive. Willow Metropark, a major recreational site, was opened in 1970 and major recreational facilities have been added over the past nine years. Facilities include space for such winter sports as cross country skiing, ski equipment rentals, hills for tobogganing and sledding.

Other facilities include scenic drives, several picnic areas with shelters, play equipment with sanitary facilities, an olympic-sized swimming pool, large bathhouse with heated showers, food service and patio area, tot lot, tennis courts and shuffleboard courts. During 1979 an open-air dance center and 18-hole golf course were added.

A photographic exhibition by master photographer Anthony J. Beckesh of Southgate, will be held through Jan. 25 at the Henry Ford Centennial Library, 16301 Michigan Avenue, Dearborn.

Specializing in nature photography, all 34 of Beckesh's photos will be displayed in the first floor rotunda of the library during library hours.

School enrollment drops except at college level in '70s

While enrollments in Michigan's public and non-public schools dropped drastically in the '70s, the number of persons attending colleges and universities increased to a record level.

The changes in the enrollments were among the many significant things that happened in education in the '70s, said Interim State Superintendent of Public Instruction Eugene T. Paslov.

Enrollments in Michigan public and non-public K-12 schools dropped more than 14 percent in the '70s, a loss of 355,000 students. It followed a gain of 469,500 in the '60s. College and university enrollments climbed 21.6 percent in the 10 years to a record enrollment this year of 504,761 students.

"The '70s saw an education movement that put more emphasis on teaching of basic skills, the adoption of many new programs aimed at improving education for Michigan students and focused on the problems of urban schools and desegregation," Paslov said. "As a result, Michigan children read and compute well above the national average."

During the '70s there also was an increase in the construction of area skill centers as school districts sought to provide their students with more special training and saleable skills.

Parents also played a major role in education in the '70s, Paslov said. "There was more parent and community involvement in education than ever before."

Paslov, as Michigan's top school leader, now looks to the '80s. He sees educators being more concerned about declining enrollments and tight finances, as well as improved technology to assist in learning, property tax reform and special concerns of urban and rural schools.

"In the '70s we sought to provide greater educational opportunities for children and youth," Paslov said. "Educators, parents and students did a good job of working together in the '70s to develop quality education programs in Michigan, but we will have to increase our efforts in the '80s to maintain and improve that quality. Our ability to do this will be seriously affected by declining enrollments and dwindling finances."

"We must also find new ways of improving the gains we have made in parent and community involvement in the schools."

With fewer students going to college immediately after graduating from high school, Paslov said educators will have to devote more time and energy to the issue of youth training and employment in the '80s.

"We will have to take a look at Wayne of aligning the expectations of the work community with the expectations of the schools."

Another major goal of the '80s will be the reform of the method of financing schools in Michigan, he added.

"The property tax is an inadequate method of funding our schools. We will need to look at a more broadly-based equitable system of funding education. We also must look more seriously at the support our schools receive at the local, state and federal levels and at what are going to be reasonable shares for each governmental unit in funding our schools."

"In the '70s we really tried to look at education in terms of what it produced," Paslov said.

Some of those products were the student assessment testing program, an accountability process, mandatory special education, bilingual education, the development of guidelines on rights and responsibilities for students and the GESTALT program, which is aimed at strengthening the skills of school staffs to improve the quality of education.

"Our job in the '80s will be to refine and improve the many new programs that were developed in the '70s," Paslov added.

Adoption meeting planned

In a united effort to find black adoptive parents for homeless Michigan children, 10 adoption agencies in the Detroit area are holding an adoption information meeting at 7 p.m. Jan. 16 in the "main room" of Northwest Activities Center, 18100 Meyers Road, Detroit.

Adoption workers will show slides of some of the children for whom they seek homes. Often these are brothers and sisters who should be adopted together. Many of the children are healthy and normal; some are handicapped — physically, mentally or emotionally.

Sydney Duncan, director of Homes for Black Children, will chair the meeting and introduce several adoptive parents who will stay after the meeting to talk with any one thinking about adopting a child.

A 20-minute film "Everybody Needs a Forever Home" will open the meeting. After it, social workers will be on hand to answer questions individually about children they have presented.

"Myths about adoption still keep many persons from knowing the joys of children in their home," said Suzann Ray, head of adoption for Children's Aid Society. "The myths say you must own your home, have money in the bank, be married, be active in your church. None of these are true."

For more information call Mrs. Ray at 875-0020 or Maureen Shea of Catholic Social Services at 883-2100.

JOLT is revived with new guides

Wayne County's Day at Jackson (DAJAK) program resumed Jan. 1, under new guidelines from the State Department of Corrections, according to County Commissioners Jackie L. Currie of Detroit and Mary E. Dumas of Livonia, respective chairman and vice-chairman of the self-funded project.

Together with similar programs in Washtenaw, Oakland and Jackson counties, the program coordinates with "JOLT" (Juvenile Offenders Learn the Truth), organized by Jackson prison inmates. The inmates attempt to frighten convicted young offenders into going straight by introducing them to the horrors of prison life.

Both programs were suspended last July after early evaluations and announcement by the Correction Commission that they are ineffective. In opposition, Commissioners Currie and Dumas launched a campaign to reinstitute both JOLT and DAJAK, claiming the commission's evaluation was premature and incomplete.

"Oddly enough," Ms. Currie and Dumas explained, "the new Correction Commission guidelines closely resemble established initially by the Wayne County project in which juveniles were closely monitored after their trip to Jackson, and provided with job opportunities and parental guidance programs. The other three counties failed to do this."

Each county group with the JOLT committee at Jackson Prison to acquaint themselves with the new Correction Commission guidelines in preparation for the restart. The projects will be reevaluated in six months by a private organization to determine whether they warrant being continued indefinitely.

Lobbyist group blasts strike legislation

The Public Service Research Council, a national public interest citizens' lobby has asked the Michigan State Senate to reject legislation to legalize strikes by public employee unions.

In a letter to the members of the State Senate, Roman Rice, director of legislative affairs for the council, said the strike legalization bill will "put a powerful new weapon into the unions' arsenal and be used against the citizen-taxpayers of the State of Michigan."

Rice went on to say that the bill "is as unpopular as it is ill-timed," noting that the trend of public opinion was against public sector strikes.

"Instead of legalizing strikes, the Michigan legislature should have the courage to enact new, strong, mandatory penalties which can be used against those who perpetrate illegal public sector work stoppages," Rice said.

The bill also would legalize court imposition of compulsory arbitration of public sector labor disputes "even more insidious than strikes." He charged that under compulsory arbitration there is absolutely no responsibility or accountability on the part of elected officials and the democratic process is entirely circumvented.

"National public opinion surveys have shown a steady trend of increasing opposition to public sector strikes, affecting vital public services," Rice continued. "In the last two years, in fact, the respected Gallup Poll has shown that an absolute majority of respondents do not believe that teachers should be permitted to strike (a plurality of persons responding have opposed teachers' right to strike since 1975)."

binding arbitration of contract impasses, when a strike is enjoined because it endangers public health and safety."

The Public Service Research Council, with 17,000 members in Michigan is the nation's largest education and research organization dedicated to the study of public sector labor policy.

Home mortgage interest rates to remain high through spring

It may be late spring or early summer before home buyers find any major drop in mortgage interest rates, according to the 1980 president of the 4,500-member Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR).

Speaking at a news conference, John J. Halser said that even then rates will likely remain above 11 percent.

"Coupled with the sluggish economy, this will provide a continued slowdown in the rise of home prices in the early part of 1980 with buyers finding bargains among the broadest choice of homes available in recent years," he said.

Those ready to step into the market and willing to pay borrowing costs will have the high interest rates offset to some degree by lower prices. When interest rates do drop significantly, prices will react to built-up demand and climb back toward annual double-digit increases by year's end."

The WWOCBR president said continuation of the current buyers' market would leave most homes on the market longer than sellers desire. But, he said, those who delay in the hope of a higher sales price would be caught in the rising price syndrome in acquiring new housing.

Halser noted that 1979 began with interest rates for a 20 percent downpayment, 30-year conventional mortgage at 10.5 percent compared to about 13.5 being asked by many lenders now.

"Monthly payments of principal and interest required for a $50,000 home would have been $365.90 at the lower rate, but now are $91.10 higher at $457.00 a month," he reported. "However, the tax deduction allowed home owners for interest payment and property taxes remains a strong incentive for buyers to move into the market. Considering these deductions, the real costs of financing can be much lower than what they appear."

He said the WWOCBR, which covers a 1,600-square mile territory in Detroit, Wayne and Oakland counties, would record a 16 percent drop in unit sales this year. This follows three consecutive record setting years.

With increased buyer resistance building through the year, the number of homes listed for sale through the board increased by 15 percent. The average price recorded by WWOCBR through the first 11 months of 1979 was near $53,100, or about 20 percent higher than in the same period in 1978.

Halser said the average price in December would be about $52,000 or about 9 percent more than the $47,700 being paid a year ago. He pointed out that an increased number of higher priced homes being sold in 1979 pushed the average up and the median price for this area would be several thousand dollars lower.

He reported a very strong shift away from conventional mortgages as buyers seek less expensive means of financing. The WWOCBR statistics for November showed only 24.3 percent of buyers using conventional mortgages compared to 64.7 percent a year ago. Showing strong gains were assumed mortgages, 28.3 percent; land contracts, 28.5 percent, and VA mortgages, 10.1 percent.

Halser said the present downturn in home sales follows the cyclical pattern of the past and predicted new annual records would be established starting early in the 1980s.

He said that between 2 million and 2.4 million new residential units would be needed each year through the next decade to keep pace with demand. Each of these will bring two to three sales of existing homes, he added.

What chores must be done following a funeral?

Prepare yourself to handle phone calls and letters. These can come for many days and weeks following the funeral.

Contact your attorney and/or executor concerning the will. Check with your life insurance agent for any necessary arrangements concerning payments.

Write notes of appreciation for those who showed a special concern for your welfare during the funeral and afterwards. You will receive acknowledgment cards from your funeral director. These are appropriate to be used. You may want to write a lengthier note to those who extended special help, sent mass cards or flowers or were pall bearers.

A grave monument may be ordered and installed. Check with the cemetery official concerning any restrictions.

Check with us about social security, veterans administration and others from whom you might receive death benefits. Naturally it is our desire to help in such matters and others perhaps of an even more personal nature. Always remember, your comfort and ease of mind is our greatest concern.

'The Landings'

It's just a matter of weeks before the first apartment building of a proposed 1,000-unit apartment complex in Westland is completed. Already, six units of this building are occupied and more will be finished up each week. The 48-apartment building is part of the first phase of The Landings, located on the south side of Warren Road, just down and across the street from Westland Center. — ANP photo.

'Landings' Phase I attracts first tenants

The first phase of a 1,000-unit apartment complex in Westland called The Landings is underway, with a target completion time of four to five years.

The $15 million project, located south of Warren Road east of Newburgh on 65 acres of land, will be built in phases as mortgages for construction become available and the market dictates, according to Michael Myers, vice-president in charge of construction for Sheldon Rose Inc.

Already, the first 48-unit building is nearly complete, and six tenants have moved in. Two dozen more renters are waiting for the rest of the units to be finished up so they can move in. A second building, also 48 units, is under construction and will be done in March, Myers said.

The company's goal is to build 240 units (five buildings) each year, he added, until the 1,000-unit complex is completed.

The pace of construction will depend on two factors, he said. The first factor is the availability of mortgage money, and the second is the market response to the apartments. So far, the public has been "very receptive" to the apartments, and 34 units already are rented out before the first building is even complete, so it appears that the market will be good.

The company estimates that if it can complete five buildings per year, the project will be done in four years. At this time, the foundations are in for three more buildings in addition to the two underway, so those could be done through the summer to complete the first 5-building phase.

The complex layout includes four ponds, to be utilized both for aesthetic value and for storm water retention. The buildings will be arranged on the site so that every apartment looks out onto a pond.

A unique feature of all apartments will be a "through" design, meaning each unit extends from the front to the back of the building. Every apartment will therefore have a front entrance at the parking lot, then extend the full depth of the building to a back patio (at the ground level) or balcony (for the upper two floors) overlooking the pond.

Resident managers at the complex have a model available and are handling rentals. The basic rent is $265 for a one bedroom and $300 for a 2-bedroom, according to a company spokesman. Renters pay their own gas and electricity bills.

The complex was first proposed in the spring of 1978, and at that time 1,200 units were planned. The number was reduced by 200, and the site plan revised, to arrange all buildings with exposure to the ponds.

Sheldon Rose is a developer of apartment complexes throughout the country, including similar ones in Farmington and Wixom.

To ease pressure problems

Westland proposes to build water main

By MAUREEN CAMPS
ANP Staff Writer

The City of Westland still is grappling with a "severe water pressure problem" in the city's northwest section, while it waits for the Detroit Water Department to install a bypass along Stark Road (in Livonia) to boost the pressure for that area.

Detroit promised to build the bypass, and is indeed "proceeding with the necessary activities to market Water System Revenue Bonds" according to a letter sent by the water department to Mayor Thomas Taylor in December. But in the meantime, the City of Westland plans to take its own steps internally in its water system to help alleviate the low pressure that not only is a problem for existing residents, but has threatened future development in the area.

To that end, the city proposes to use $130,000 in federal Community Development (CD) funds to construct a 12-inch water main from Cherry Hill to Ford Road along the western city limits. Because the project would mean transferring funds from one CD project to another, a public hearing on the proposed change is required.

That $130,000 had been designated for a meter pit at Merriman and Annapolis roads, said Kent Herbert, director of state and federal grants. But there have been delays in that project in getting working easements, so he's suggesting the money be used by the council to address the more urgent need.

The public hearing on the water main project will be at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 4 in the council chambers of Westland City Hall. After that, the council will decide if it will transfer the money.

Next, the Department of Housing and Urban Development will have to give the project approval. Herbert estimated that work possibly could begin on the installation of the water main in late winter, before the spring thaw makes the ground too soggy to work, or after the weather breaks.

The Stark Road bypass still will be needed to provide a long-term solution to the low water pressure in northwest Westland, a part of Livonia and Canton Township.

The funds for that improvement to the Detroit water system will be part of a $35 million bond issue that Detroit will soon be attempting to sell, perhaps by May, said Mayor Taylor.

But the bypass probably would take another 18 months to construct. The water main from Cherry Hill to Ford Road was an internal improvement that the city had planned to do anyway, but it has a new urgency in response to the water pressure problems.

The whole issue of low water pressure came to a critical stage a few months ago, when the Detroit Board and State Department of Public Health decided they might cut off future water tap-in permits in the area of northwest Westland and northeast Canton.

The water board went on to explain that it could solve the low pressure problem by constructing the Stark bypass, but said that since the water board was the subject of a lawsuit (brought by the suburban communities over a rate increase two years ago and still in court), it could not sell bonds to pay for the improvement.

The Westland mayor and Canton Township officials threatened to sue the water board over the proposed ban, saying they were being singled out to be "martyrs", and would not stand for it.

Especially important to Westland was and is all the development planned in the city's northwest section, including a large subdivision, condominium and apartment projects, an industrial park and others.

With the threat that they might not be able to get water tap-ins, city and township officials met with representatives of the department of health and water board. It was agreed that projects already "in the works" would be allowed to proceed, but still would have to be reviewed individually. In some cases, developers were encouraged to build in phases. As it has turned out, not too much work that would strain the water system has been completed through the end of this year.

The City of Westland promised to do some internal improvements, such as this proposed water main project.

And the Detroit Water Board did agree to go ahead and sell the bonds to build the Stark Road bypass. Following through on that promise, the water board at its December meeting voted to proceed with marketing the necessary revenue bonds for that project and several others planned to improve the system.

The suburban lawsuit against the water board over former rate increases still is hanging over Detroit's head, but the water board has gained assurances from most of the suburban cities that they'll take payment, if they win, in the form of "credits" toward future rate increases, rather than demand refunds. Resolution of that lawsuit is expected in January. There is a Jan. 18 court date scheduled, or it is possible an out of court settlement will be reached before then, Taylor noted. It appears that the suburban communities stand a very good chance of winning, he added.

Organize to take tension out of income tax filing

If income tax filing is complicated, confusing and time consuming, Jan. 1 is the day to set a simple plan in action. It won't help with your 1979 return, but when 1980 preparation time rolls around the job will be a lot simpler and may even save you money by insuring that each and every legal deduction is taken.

A taxpayer's first New Year's resolution should be self-organization. The key, according to C.I.T. Financial Services, is to file away each tax-related item when it's received. By keeping all documents in a single, safe place, they will be ready when the time comes to prepare next year's forms. The taxpayer will avoid the mad scramble to gather misplaced receipts and other documents in time for the April 15 federal filing deadline.

Taxpayers should save medical, dental and drug receipts, proof of interest charges, state and local tax documents, charitable receipts and notes on undocumented cash contributions. An adequate retention system should hold the year's bills, invoices, receipts and cancelled checks.

At filing time, the individual can then present his or her tax preparation service with an orderly, complete package of materials with which to work; or personally approach the job without having to constantly stop and search for missing items.

Records to be kept include any documents reflecting income. Wages are normally reported on a W-2 form supplied by employers. However, records should be kept on all interest and dividend income, profits or losses from sales of property and securities and all other money received.

C.I.T. Financial Services points out that a good rule of thumb is to file everything that relates to receiving or spending money. It's much easier to discard an unneeded document than to search for a receipt or statement that's been misplaced or even discarded.

Here are several additional suggestions for taxpayers offered by C.I.T.:

(1) Pay all tax-deductible items by check. Reviewing your checkbook provides an immediate picture of your deductions. It's wise to retain the bills, sales slips and any receipts for these checks should a deduction have to be proven. This is especially true for medical expenses which may have been reimbursed in part by insurance coverages.

(2) Retain past income tax forms for at least six years. They are helpful, if you have a "windfall" and wish to average income over a 5-year period.

(3) Keep a log or diary of expenses such as miles driven, meals, parking and tolls incurred while doing charitable work. Credit card purchases of gas are not considered proof of travel.

(4) File records of long-term expenses such as home improvements and investments. These are needed to verify profit and loss when a home or other investment is finally sold.

(5) Take a close look at your own state tax laws. They may allow deductions not permitted by the federal government.

The entire question of income taxes often is complicated, regardless of the amounts of money involved. C.I.T. recommends that expert counsel be obtained when any doubt or question exists about income tax matters.

Chrysler

By Senator William Proxmire, Chairman
Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs

The time has come to think about the prospects of bailouts of American corporations. One of the final acts of the Congress the past year was to pass by far the most massive assistance to a single failing corporation in the history of this country.

Some of us saw this as a dangerous precedent that we should not repeat, and that if Chrysler needs more, we should say "No". Some viewed it as a signal that — like it or not — the government would have to play a far bigger role in the future in salvaging corporations in trouble and suggested a planned bailout program based on a revival of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation experience of the Great Depression.

Some contend that the federal government should follow the policies of Germany and Japan with massive investment and promotion of firms in new and growing technologies. The purpose would be not to bail out losers but to promote the new dynamic industries of the future, especially to give this country a trade advantage in areas where other industrialized countries are now able to meet us and defeat us.

Some suggest that we just relax and continue as we have in the past, bailing out the occasional worthy applicant like Lockheed or Chrysler, but determining each case on its merits. Presumably the merits would be considerably influenced by the capability of the firm to bring effective lobbying pressure on the Administration and the Congress. Therefore, the bigger the firm — the more employees, the more suppliers, the more vigorous and politically aggressive the firm's union, and the more insistent the firm's banks and other creditors — then the more willing the Congress and the Administration would be to consider the merits. Also such a plea would be more likely to win in an election year or on the verge of an election year — especially a Presidential election year.

In the absence of some clear-cut policy of the Congress and the Administration, the latter alternative — that is, bailing out big firms with clout — will be the federal policy. The gross injustice of such a policy is likely to be so apparent that the Congress may decide to delegate to some agency — perhaps the Small Business Administration or a new Reconstruction Finance Corporation — the authority to bail out firms that promise to try to become more efficient in the future. Others will argue that we should temper the program with more aggressive assistance to winners as well as losers. After all, if you're going to bail out Chrysler and maybe Ford, shouldn't we provide comparable resources to General Motors?

It is clear that whatever we do to provide more federal guarantees, or loans or grants, or other concessions, the more intrusive and burdensome government is going to be.

If we step back from this situation, we must recognize that the biggest economic protest of our time is not that there is too little government, but that there is too much government, not that government is too small and too reluctant to get involved in our lives but too big, too pervasive, too expensive and too inflationary. If we recognize this, then we may be willing to say "No" to any of these interventionist policies.

This federal government is now half a trillion dollars a year in size. It is a massive, inefficient force that lurches along without discipline and often without direction. Yet this stumbling giant can indeed soften the misery and heartbreak often suffered in the market place. Yes, we can establish another Reconstruction Finance Corporation. We can continue to bail out failing corporations and keep them — for a while at least — from failing. Maybe we can even promote new technologies by force feeding them with loans and guarantees. Indeed, we're doing exactly that on a multi-billion dollar scale in the synthetic fuel industry.

But let us not fool ourselves. If we follow these policies, we are going to expand the size, the tax burden and the inflationary effect of government even more than we have in the past. And it is unlikely that out of this we are going to get a more efficient economy.

The profit and loss, make or fail economy on the market place does indeed hand us an occasional failure. Investors lose their money. Most tragic of all, workers lose their jobs. The price is high. But it's the price we pay for an efficient, free market system that with all its faults has served this nation well throughout the years. And it is not heartless. We have an unemployment compensation program that saves job losers from the abject misery of unemployment in the Depression. Welfare is available as it never was in the Depression. Few lose their homes or cars. We have today more Americans at work in relation to the population than we have ever had in the history of the nation.

The Chrysler decision by the Congress poses two immediate threats that we must be prepared to deal with or they will surely materialize.

First, the Chrysler Corporation may not make it with the present $1.5 billion federal guarantee. They may be back for more within a few years. We must be prepared in that event to say "No". We should recognize how very difficult that is going to be and be prepared to make a vigorous fight to cut our losses. We must accept the Chrysler bailout as a lesson — that failing firms must be allowed to fail, regardless of their size or influence, that bankruptcy does not mean the end of the world and that, in the Chrysler case, for instance, no responsible and objective analyst argued that the Chrysler failure would have significant, let alone lasting effect on the economy.

Second, we must be prepared to say "No" to the next applicant — whether it's a giant automobile firm, a steel company or a major city.

Third, we should not establish another depression agency like the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to bail out every loser they can find. This is not the Great Depression and nothing like it. Failing firms cannot blame the overwhelming, catastrophic falloff in demand, the grotesque deflation that torpedoed even the most efficiently operated firms in the thirties.

Fourth, we should not pour billions into a Japanese or German type program of subsidizing our high technology export industries. This is the United States, not Japan and not Germany. We spend more on research and development than all the other nations in the world combined. We have more engineers and scientists than any other nation — in relation to GNP, to population or on any other relevant basis. Our export industries — especially the most promising and successful ones — don't want this kind of government intrusion. And they are right.

Fifth, we should recognize we don't need more federal government "help" to industry. We need less.

On the other hand, government assistance to laid-off workers of failing industry is vital. It is immensely expensive. But it is at the heart of any strategy to stop wholesale bailouts. The overwhelming justification for federal assistance is to save jobs. The answer to saving jobs must go farther than unemployment compensation and half-hearted retraining or talk without action about moving workers to where the jobs are. It is ironic that a strategy that spares the workers the misery of unemployment when big firms fail can go a long way towards saving a free enterprise system embattled by threatened bailouts. But it is true.

DNR and toxic waste

By ROBERT LAW
State Representative
38th District

DNR officials do not have a specific idea of the amount of time it will take and how much it will ultimately cost to clean up 268 sites known to contain toxic contamination, which were listed in a department report issued two weeks ago.

The DNR report listed 268 sites around the state known to contain toxic contamination; 381 sites suspected of dangerous pollutants; and more than 50,000 potentially contaminated sites.

I think it's safe to say that it was a report that shook everyone in the state. No one expected to be told that there was such a high incidence of toxic contamination in our groundwater supplies which could lead to diseases, and even death, for persons living near the sites.

The scope of the problem is so large and so new to us that we really don't quite know how to go about accomplishing a clean-up of the sites.

For example, the DNR cannot come any closer to pinpointing the resources a clean-up will require than to say that it will take between "40 and 240 man years and between $12.9 million and $46 million."

That should be some indication of the sweeping problem toxic contamination has become and the concern that it has generated in local communities across Michigan.

Muskegon County showed the highest number of toxic contamination sites in the state; Oakland and Kent counties were next; Grand Traverse, Manistee, Wexford, Marquette, Isabella, Gratiot, Saginaw, Ingham, Ottawa, Allegan, Kalamazoo, Berrien, Washtenaw and Wayne Counties followed; and the remaining 66 counties showed relatively low incidences of groundwater contamination.

What happens now?

Using existing resources, the DNR plans to set priorities for a clean-up at sites known to contain some toxic contamination according to the pollution's effects on human health or resources; the risk of human exposure to hazardous materials; and the need to respond to emergency situations as they arise.

The House Appropriations Committee recently passed a pair of bills earmarking funds for the clean-up of two contaminated sites in southeastern Michigan—one in Oakland County and one in Adrian. The Oakland County appropriation was for $1.2 million; the clean-up in Adrian was subsidized with a $450,000 appropriation.

I will do all I can to secure funds for a clean-up to begin in Michigan as soon as possible. The health of persons living near these sites should be our number one priority. Whatever amount of money that it takes should be made available to ensure that innocent homeowners and their families are not the victims of toxic contamination simply because they live near one of the sites.

NEW HIGHS AND RECORD LOWS

The Legislature achieved some new highs in several areas, but there were also some poor moments and moments that should have occurred but never did.

In the area of environment, the Governor will soon sign a wetlands control bill that neither gives the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) new regulatory blank check over property owners nor provides a weak administrative role for the agency.

The legislation finally passed after what some observers called seven years of talk will exempt from regulation until an inventory of wetlands is complete, those counties with less than 100,000 population and without wetlands attached to any navigable stream leading to a Great Lake.

On the other hand, it will immediately protect those wetlands in high population areas most in danger of loss due to development.

Insurance reform was another high mark for the Legislature this past year as the House and Senate both approved a major anti-reducing bill that will assure, among other features, that all motorists have access to no fault insurance.

Also approved by the House and awaiting action in the Senate is a bill restructuring the Blue Cross-Blue Shield board of directors. As a non-profit corporation, the Blues are subject to legislative oversight.

The DNR cannot come any closer to pin-pointing clean-up resources...

Other areas in which the Legislature took action that will have benefit to smaller segments of Michigan's citizenry are laws that will control unlimited body searches by police agencies; give to wood harvesters the same reduced license-plate rates now enjoyed by farmers; and start the clean-up of dangerous toxic wastes in our state.

Now for the bad news.

Unfortunately, the majority in the Legislature insisted on enacting a law that clearly circumvents the letter and spirit of the Headlee tax limitation amendment adopted by Michigan voters in November, 1978.

The law enacted, which was needed to implement the Headlee constitutional change, states that millage for local governmental units, which is rolled back to keep with the inflation protection of Headlee can go back up automatically.

I frankly believe that millage should not be raised without a vote of the people in the locality affected.

Tax reform seemed to go to the back of the line in majority priorities.

While a number of my colleagues (and I) sponsored a bill that would tie state income tax exemptions to the increase in the rate of in-

Chamber Chatter

Some want a better effort

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

Have pity for Congresswoman Marjorie Holt of Maryland, and while you're at it, for Congressman Del Latta and Ralph Regula of Ohio, Barber Conable of New York, Dave Stockman of Michigan and John Rousselot of California.

They and legislators of similar persuasion in both parties all share a common concern. The better they try to do their jobs, the more they seem to annoy and embarrass their colleagues. The problem, you see, is that they keep asking the same awkward questions — the ones the American public wants answered, but that Congress as a whole wants to avoid.

What they are trying to determine is simply this: Why won't Congress cut taxes ... or spending ... or both?

It's been a frustrating quest. Why they push for tax cuts alone, they're told in effect: "Stop that! You'll worsen inflation." They disagree, but for the sake of progress they offer a proposal linking tax cuts to spending cuts.

Next answer: "Your cuts are too large. You're advocating a meat ax approach!" Undaunted, they try again, returning with a request for smaller cuts, only to be told: "Don't bother us with that. Now is not the right time."

Will there ever be a right time? You have to wonder. Having been defeated on three different attempts to reduce the federal budget during the last two months, Holt, Latta and company recently decided to make one last offer — an offer no one could refuse. Exempting defense and veterans affairs, they proposed a general spending reduction totalling barely two percent of the budget — mere crumbs within the giant $550 billion federal pie. Then they challenged the House to prove it was at least willing to eliminate this tiny amount of waste.

How greedy of them! The House, unable to stomach such sweeping cutbacks, instead swallowed its pride and voted down their motion. Indeed, the budget-cutters were even given a lecture and accused of trying to subvert the entire budget process.

It's true, of course, that passage of this two percent reduction would have delayed the budget process. It would have meant sending the budget resolution back to committee where the specific spending cuts would have to be decided. But remember, the whole purpose of establishing a budget process was to get a better handle on federal spending. So what the spenders were really saying to the budget-cutters was: "If we pass your motion to limit spending, we'll destroy our process to limit spending!" How's that for tortured logic?

The bottom line is this: In the name of saving the sacred budget process, the House has approved another double digit increase in the federal budget itself — a comfortable continuation of policies that have witnessed a quadrupling of the federal budget since 1962, and a doubling of the national debt in the last eight years. The bill will have to be paid through higher taxes, higher inflation, or both. If, during the past 20 years, all private businesses were run as poorly as that, there would probably be no profits to tax, no revenues to collect, and thus, no programs to fund!

What can you do? First, you must realize that spending other people's money gives government tremendous power, so it will say almost anything to make you believe it has the right and the ability to spend your money better than you can.

In a recent issue of Policy Report, Paul Craig Roberts described this approach: "Recessions justify deficits to get the economy moving again; recoveries justify deficits to keep recoveries going; good times justify deficits to ward off the downturn that is predicted to be around the corner. Signs can be found upon which to predict a recession." It's time for Americans to wake up and reject this so-called economic expertise.

Second, Americans, as taxpayers, must become much more politically involved in trying to reduce the burden of government. As Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin, a tireless foe of government waste, recently noted: "Who comes to Washington to ask us to cut a particular program? You will wait a long time for an answer. Who comes? No one. Not ever. But hundreds come purporting to represent millions, asking us to increase spending ..."

People like Proxmire in the Senate and the budget-cutters in the House are trying to work for us. Why can't we start coming to Washington by the hundreds, thousands, or even millions to help them? If we don't we might lose the most important battle of our lives, without ever having put up a fight.

Carol Premo, a Certified Social Worker in private practice in Belleville, Mich., will be presenting weekly answers to problems which may have been the source of either joy or pain for some of our readers.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Dear Carol,
I am thirty four years old and separated from my husband who has a drinking problem. I was married at 16. I got married because I was pregnant and thought life would be better. I wanted to leave home where my dad drank like a skunk and my mom never did a darn thing. I had to do all the work and all they did was yell at me. Then, I got married and Dave (not his name) drank like a skunk, I did all the work — he didn't have a job — and I got yelled at.
I have four kids ages 1, 8, 12, 17 and I have to support them all alone. I will not take welfare. I am not that kind and would rather die. I think I am pregnant again. I just don't see how I can make it. I will lose my job. I won't get an abortion. I don't know what to do. Can you help me.

Desperate

Dear Desperate,
I can certainly understand why you signed your letter desperate. Your letter, as you wrote it, was too long to print and had to be cut. It does sound as if you have had some very tough times. I am not even going to try to address myself to all of your individual difficulties but rather, strongly suggest counseling. Try calling the:

Dear Carol,
The other day while with friends I said something about a policeperson. One asked why I didn't just say "cop." I was always taught that "cop" is a term of disrespect. What do you think is the right term for officers of the law?

Curious

Dear Curious,
The proper term would be policeman, policewoman or police officer. Policeperson probably isn't necessary and the avoidance of sexual identity is taken care of by the term officer (and by their uniforms!).
Usually, Curious, people do not take offense where none is intended. My father was a police officer and never minded the term Cop as long as it was not said in a disrespectful way. As a point of interest he told me the term cop came from the copper buttons they wore on their uniforms.

Reflections

Resolved that I won't...

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

It is time to make New Year's resolutions.

I have a hard time with New Year's resolutions. Not that it is difficult to make them, but it is difficult to keep them. I should say I am filled with guilt feelings when I don't fulfill those resolutions, but actually, the difficulty is not that I can't keep them, it is that I can't remember them. Even when I write them down I manage to tuck them away somewhere and forget where I tucked them. So you can readily see the dilemma I am in on this New Year of 1980.

For sixteen years I have been writing a New Year's column, and now it is time for the seventeenth. The Christmas tree has been taken down, the new carpet laid, the father of my children is dancing around in the kitchen holding the thumb up whose nail the time of a fork has penetrated, cursing dishwashers and all forks which are put into dishwashers upside down. Our youngest son is ravaging the basement, the sound of his saw and drill making peculiar noises under my feet.

The clock is ticking in the corner, ticking away the minutes and my deadline is looming.

I am filled with panic. And then the mail is brought in. Across the face of an envelope is scrawled "To Grandma," I open it and take out a torn corner of a lined sheet of paper with the words printed diagonally across it, "I love you. Mike."

And then I think of this past Christmas season, and once again I see the Christmas Tree twinkling in the corner, at whose base are heaping packages. The smell of a Swedish smorgasbord coming from the kitchen, leaping flames in the fireplace greeting the laughing young people pouring through the door, and the sound of music permeates the house.

The newest member-to-be of the family, sporting a gleaming diamond, sat on the piano bench and radiated.

"I've never spent a Christmas where there is so much love," she said, and I saw the soft flush on her cheeks, and the sparkle in her eyes and the graceful, slender hands brushing back a strand of hair and my heart was filled with joy.

I looked at each face glowing in the soft light of Christmas, and as their father played the organ, and the group sang those wonderful carols, my glance fell on my son's wife, who is big with child. Her dark hair piled on her head with high dark combs holding it in place, her eyes dancing and her dimples flashing as she watched her two little boys singing.

And my heart was filled with the knowledge that we were celebrating the birth of a baby and I looked again at the glowing girl who was carrying within her new life — the symbol of Christmas.

I looked around the room again, my gaze falling on my own beloved born-to-me children, and the ones with whom they had chosen to spend their lives, at the grandchildren, and the patriarch of this group, his slender fingers touching the organ keys as he made music which seemed to come from the depths of his soul.

Today — the last day of 1979 then, is a day of remembrance and a day of thankfulness for all that which has made my life blessed.

My heart bleeds for those children who are starving in other parts of the world; my heart bleeds for those who are alone; for the tragedies and hurts of others, and I would that, somehow, I could gather them all into my home and let them share the abundance of our hearts.

I guess, then, that my New Year's column will be one in which I pray that in no way will I ever fail in giving out that which has been so abundantly given to me, and that somehow, someday, all of those starving little ones will be fed, all those lonely ones will find love and companionship, and that that which this season symbolizes will fill our world.
Happy New Year!

Nationalist Chinese

By HERB BERKOWITZ

For the 17 million free Chinese of the Republic of China 1980 will be a turning point.

It will be the first time in 30 years — since the Chinese government fled the Mainland in 1949 — that they have stood alone.

And they intend to survive, with or without the help of the United States.

The U.S., for its part, appears intent on making things as difficult as possible. Just over a year ago — in December 1978 — the Carter Administration declared the Republic of China an international pariah, and broke diplomatic relations with this loyal friend and ally.

As if this shock was not enough, the Administration also announced its intention to terminate the U.S.-ROC Mutual Defense Treaty. The treaty thus expired a few days ago, at midnight on December 31.

To further please the Mainland, the Administration has starved the ROC military of needed equipment for the past year. The embargo — aimed at cementing our relationship with the Communist regime — is reportedly being lifted, however, and arms sales were to resume on January 1 — with the exception, of course, of the sophisticated F-16 fighter aircraft and anti-submarine (ASW) missiles, ships and aircraft the Taiwan defense forces need to ensure the security of the Taiwan Straits.

Moreover, despite a pledge by the Administration not to alter any of the other existing treaties and formal agreements between the U.S. and Taiwan, the Administration now says it will terminate the air transport agreement between our two countries (at the insistence of the Mainland regime.)

The military isolation of Taiwan, and the general shabby treatment accorded this long-time ally cuts to the very heart of U.S. foreign policy, and brings into question the meaning of friendship and honor in the international arena.

Dr. Fredrick Chien, the articulate Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Hon. Sun Yun-Suan, the ROC Prime Minister, discussed this with us, and left us with the feeling that the United States is perhaps in need of some serious soul-searching.

To wit, Chien said, American policymakers seem to believe that in order to make new friends "you have to sacrifice old ones."

The Yale-educated Chien added: "I think that making a friend out of an enemy is a worthy effort, but to make an enemy out of a friend is not worth it."

It is unlikely the Republic of China on Taiwan will ever be an enemy of the United States. We have too much in common. Despite having sand kicked in their faces by U.S. policymakers, the Chinese still hold America in high regard, are very thankful for the help we have given them, and are still willing to stand at our side on the field of battle.

I wonder how many such friends the United States still has around the world — and whether there is any way we could have treated the Republic of China more badly.

Cherry Hill faces title test at Melvindale

Can champ cope with slow-down tactics?

Way is clear

Breezing past Fordson's Craig Micallef (34), Wayne Memorial's Darryl Jordan (24) flies toward the basket for two of his eight points in Friday night's Great Lakes 8 Conference confrontation. Jordan's layup was one of those rare moments when the Zebras caught Fordson's defense napping. Fordson pounded out an easy victory as they handed the hosts their second league loss of the campaign.

Cherry Hill cagers began the new year the way they left the old one — with an impressive victory.

Coach Dave Bogataj's Spartans crushed Southgate Schafer 75-34 Friday night for their second Tri-River Conference victory in three starts, their fifth over-all win in six outings.

"We were just too fast, too quick for them," Bogataj said. "I played my first string only for the first eight minutes of this game."

That was apparently enough as Spartans' Andy Simmons sank 10 of his game high 16 points and Gary Williams pumped in seven of his 15 points to stake the defending league champs to a 25-5 advantage.

Substituting at will, Coach Bogataj's forces ran up a 41-14 lead at halftime, then went on to outscore their visitors 20-8 and 14-12 in the last two periods.

Although he scored only four points, Cherry Hill's junior playmaker, Greg Thompson, contributed 10 assists, and collected seven steals. Center Aaron Gregory picked up six points, seven rebounds and five steals in the limited time he was on the court.

Bogataj doesn't expect his next league foe, Melvindale, to be an easy opponent. The two meet Friday night in Melvindale to decide which team will remain in second place.

"Melvindale plays a deliberate brand of ball game and they slow down and set up patterns," Bogataj said. "We're going to have to break that pattern. If we don't get our running game going, we'll be in trouble."

Cherry Hill will also have to figure a way on stopping 6-3 senior forward Frank Farraj who has been the mainstay of the Cardinal attack.

Monroe 'a must' for Wayne cagers

If Wayne Memorial wants anything more to say about the Great Lakes 8 Conference basketball title it'll have to find some way of beating undefeated Monroe.

Coach Steve Schwartz' Zebras clash with the league-leading Trojans Friday night on the home court and, after a 61-43 setback at the hands of Fordson last Friday, the game is a "must" for the local cagers.

"Friday night's game is definitely an important one for us," said Schwartz whose Zebras are 2-2 going into the week in the Great Lakes 8. (Wayne was to play Lincoln Park, also 2-2, Tuesday night). "We just can't afford to lose another league game and hope to remain in contention."

Wayne stood its ground with Fordson for eight minutes before it gave way to the sharp-shooting Tractors who bolted from a 12-10 edge to a commanding 31-17 advantage at halftime.

"Take away that second period," Schwartz said, "and we played them tough. We lost our intensity in the second period and when they full court pressed us, some of our big people didn't carry out their assignments."

Fordson guards Jim McIntire and Frank Gajor fired up the visitors when they hit on five "bombs" between them early in the second period to pull the Tractors away. The Zebras couldn't muster enough offensive power to counter-attack though they pulled within 10 points late in the third period.

Andy Daily's 12 points topped Wayne's scorer while Gajor turned in with 15 points, the game's high and teammate Craig Micallef accounted for 14. McIntire chipped in 10 points for the Dearbornites who hit 46 percent from the field.

South sets baseball talks

Romulus South Little League will hold a baseball managers and coaches' meeting 7 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 10 in the Community Room, City Hall.

All persons who want to coach or manage a South Little League baseball team this summer are urged to attend.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning Danny Doss (942-0347) any time after 4 p.m.

"We held their two leading scorers — Gajor and McIntire — to well below their averages, but Craig (Micallef) really hurt us. Along with 14 points, he collected 11 rebounds, five steals and eight blocked shots."

Nice try

Wayne's Jamie Barber (34) manages to save the ball from going out of bounds while Fordson's Mike Christoff (32) watches. Wayne had its problems in the second period against the visiting Dearbornites and eventually dropped a Great Lakes 8 Conference game that pins them against the wall. Coach Steve Schwartz' cagers must win their next two matches in order to stay in contention.

2nd half letdown leaves Belleville with 7th loss

Southgate drew first blood in the first game of the year and their first encounter with a Belleville basketball team.

Outscoring Coach Tom Niemi's Tigers 22-15 in the second period, Southgate handed Belleville its seventh consecutive loss, 74-62. The Sabers outscored the Tigers 17-15 and 20-18 in the second half.

"I was pleased with the fact that we had better balanced scoring," said Niemi, "and that we were very selective about our shots. But Southgate just had too much height for us, and this kid, Jeff Jaciuk, was superb."

Jaciuk destroyed the Tigers as he tossed in eight baskets and made 13-of-16 from the free throw line for a game-high 19 points. He also received ample scoring support from Al Long who had 18 and Charles Halash who scored 12 points.

Belleville stayed close, trailing by one, 15-14, after the first period. Jeff Patterson, who turned in his best game of the year, teamed with Cory Allison, Glen Johnson and Scott Forster to keep the Tigers in contention.

Patterson finished the night with 14 points and 10 rebounds, while Allison sank 11 and Johnson helped out with 10 points. Bruce Rooks turned in an excellent defensive game.

Belleville hit on 35 percent of its shots from the field making 22-of-62, while they capitalized on 18 of 31 from the free throw line.

After playing out-of-league rival, Adrian, Tuesday night, the Tigers resume Suburban 8 Conference competition at Trenton Friday.

When three is not a crowd

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Three, the saying goes, is a crowd.

Not, however, when you're trying to stage a basketball tournament. Usually one needs four teams. That's the number the Western Wayne Holiday Classic has used for over a decade.

But Belleville, one of the four participating schools, has decided to drop out of the tournament, leaving Westland John Glenn, Wayne Memorial and Cherry Hill in a quandary.

Who will fill the void?

And why did Belleville after all these years decide to back out of the tournament?

"The reason for it," said Ron Hellier, Belleville High athletic director, "is that the tournament is played during the Christmas vacation. I had a long talk with my coach (Tom Niemi) and we felt that we should give our kids more time off during the vacation."

"If the tournament was played before the holidays, there would be no problem. But we can't change that, so we decided that we were not going to be back next year."

Does that sound the knell for the popular holiday tournament? Not really — Romulus is a natural heir-apparent to the tournament berth.

"We feel that it would be a most positive venture if we would be allowed to compete in the Western Wayne against such teams as Wayne Memorial, John Glenn and Cherry Hill," said Bill Hardy, Romulus High's athletic director.

"I feel that we are natural heirs to this tournament," Hardy continued, "since our neighbor, Belleville, has decided not to compete in it. Not only because of the geographic proximity of the participating schools, but also from a spectator's point of view. We feel that we have an excellent following in the way of spectators."

Hardy pointed out that Romulus track coach Al Wilkerson and Wayne Memorial's Ernie Righetti has helped "tremendously to cement positive relations between the two schools. They train their kids and exchange tips on coaching and they exemplify the excellent relationship and sportsmanship that can be fostered between high school athletes."

"And one also has to consider the gasoline crisis," said Hardy. "Since we are nearby, transportation between the schools will not be too burdensome for anyone involved."

Netherlands represented on All-Area girls' swim team

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

For the first time in its history, an Associated Newspapers' All-Area team has an international flavor as Karin Stover, an exchange student from the Netherlands, joins a host of outstanding high school girl swimmers on the ANP honor roll.

Miss Stover, a senior at Westland John Glenn, helped Coach Jim Lawrence's Rockets post a 10-1 won-lost record en route to the Northwest Suburban Conference co-championship.

"She has been a valuable asset to our program," said Coach Lawrence. "We are very fortunate that she chose to attend John Glenn."

Miss Stover, a versatile performer, captured a first place medal for the 100-yard butterfly in the conference and set a school record of 1:07.8 in that event. She also holds the 200-yard freestyle (2:10.3) and the 500-yard freestyle (5:56.2) school records and is a member of the record-setting Glenn Medley relay team.

Also honored on this year's ANP team from Glenn are: Janet Borgerding, Kelly Lang, Sandy Hawkins, Sandy Martinez, Mary Wilber, Karen Scarborough, Nancy Ostlund and Cathy White; Belleville's representatives include: Martha Ryznar, Laura Kuhr, Denise Traskos, Cherie Kobish, Melody Clark, Andrea Whittico and Lori Vicchy; Wayne Memorial's contributions to this year's line-up are: Sandy Burns, Cathy Batherson, Mary Jo Mason, Lori Miles, Lisa Mondocho, Lacy Lopez, Karen Van

Keuren, and Gretchen Batterson. BORGERDING, a senior, won the Northwest Suburban Conference diving title and qualified for the state finals where she finished 27th. She was the second best performer at the prestigious Western Wayne Invitational and coach Lawrence noted: "that Janet has been an excellent diver for Glenn the past three years."

LANG was voted Glenn's Outstanding Swimmer of the 1979 season. An extremely versatile performer — she competed in every event except diving, Miss Land is a member of the record-setting medley relay team that also consists of sophomore Sandy Hawkins, senior Karin Stover and sophomore Sandy Martinez who churned a 2:04.9. That time was the second best in the league.

Glenn's freestyle relay team made up of Wilber, Scarborough, Ostlund and Cathy White turned in an excellent 4:11.8 to nail down the school record. The foursome was also instrumental in lifting the Westlanders to a perfect 5-0 conference dual meet record. Glenn's 10-1 over-all mark is the best in the school's 15-year history.

RYZNAR has captained the last two teams at Belleville High School and owns the school's 100-yard freestyle record, the 200-yard freestyle and is also a member of the record-setting 400-yard freestyle relay team. She was picked for for all-conference recognition in the Suburban 8 Conference for her efforts in the 100 and 200 yard freestyle. Martha was the league

Salem captures own wrestling invitational

Rock coach says his team will be 'low-keyed' for Schoolcraft

Shaking off a jinx with one hand and adding its fourth major tournament title of the year with the other, Plymouth Salem captured its own wrestling invitational championship for the first time in five years Saturday night.

"For one reason or another we had not been able to win this thing," said Salem Coach Ron Krueger, "but everything fell in place this year. We had no injuries or sickness, and our kids wrestled extremely well."

"What I'm surprised at is the relative ease — the point spread — that we managed to win by," Krueger added.

Salem garnered 205 points and had 11 medalists and outdistanced Westland John Glenn, the defending champ, which piled up 154½ points and 10 medalists. Trenton, a ranked Class A state power, was third with 146 points. There were 13 other area teams in this year's invitational.

Salem chalked up three gold medals thanks to Jim Schultz (105), Jerry Valchine (138) and Steve Szilagy (167) while the Rocks were runners-up with Jeff Brown (119), Mark Ross (126) and Jeff Powers (185). The champs finished third at heavyweight with Greg Cattoni and boasted three fourth-place finishers: Bob Price (145), Scott Piper (155) and Stan Snider (198). Jeff Wojcek was sixth (98).

John Glenn Coach Bob Lusk said he was pleased with his team's final finish, but was disappointed at the over-all progress of his wrestlers. "When you finish as high as we did in the caliber of a tournament such as Salem, you have to be pleased," Lusk pointed out, "however, we're somewhat disappointed at the progress of some of our wrestlers."

The Westlanders had the best 198-pounder in the tournament in Gary Black who earned the gold medal with a 13-7 decision over Bay City Western's Bob Rugenstein. The Rockets finished second in three weight classes: 98 - Pete Bologna; 132-Greg O'Neil; and 155-Ken Hodges. Ben Griffin (105), Keith Zimmerman (167) and Dave German (185) were fourth place finishers while Steve Alewine (heavyweight), Chipper Saam (126) and Duane Gibbs (145) were fifth.

Canton was represented on the dias by Dave Vaughan who lost the gold at 167 to Salem's Szilagy in overtime, 3-1. Tom Harrel was fourth at 112, while John Surlock and Steve Hamblin were sixth at 105 and 145 pounds, respectively.

Franklin received a sixth-place performance from its heavyweight, Chris Polehna.

Bay City Western, making a comeback after a millage defeat, had the outstanding wrestler of the tournament. Scott Rechsteiner, a 145-pounder, won all four of his matches - a 0:48 pin, a 24-2 superior decision, a pin in 3:00 and a victory over top-seeded Mike Marsh of Ypsilanti in 5:33.

Salem joins a host of teams on Friday and Saturday at the Schoolcraft College Invitational, another prestigious meet whose title has eluded the Rocks. But Krueger said his team "will be low-keyed for that tournament."

"I don't want to burn our kids out," said Krueger. "I want them to have something left at the end, at the rate we're going. I'm apprehensive. We could run out of gas."

"I look for Mt. Clemens to be real tough," he added.

Area teams that will make appearances at Schoolcraft include

'Demolition derby'

Before breaking for the Christmas Holidays, Westland John Glenn and Wayne Memorial met in their traditional dual meet and the Westlanders came off the mats with an impressive 34-19 victory. Despite the team triumph, the Rockets dropped a close 7-4 decision when Wayne's 126-

Belleville's JV's win WW cage crown

Belleville's varsity basketball team may have problems finding its way into the victory columns this year, but not its junior varsity club.

Coach Leon Birbyshaw's Tigers rallied from a 37-30 halftime deficit to beat Wayne Memorial 67-57 and capture the 1979-80 Western Wayne Holiday Tournament Championship.

Sparked by Chris Flum's 17 points and Reggie Grantham's 16, the Belleville junior varsity squad caught Wayne 51-47 at the three-quarter mark then went on to present Birbyshaw his first championship in four years.

"I felt we played an excellent defensive game against Wayne," Coach Birbyshaw said. "In fact, it was our best. We managed to shut down their guards."

But Belleville's defense had its hands full trying to stop forward

Gary Mazurer who pumped in a game-high 26 points for the Zebras. Mazurer was the only Wayne cager to hit in two figures.

In that crucial third period, Flum collected seven points and he was supported by Grantham, Keith Mixom and Eric Cullin who each had four points.

Wayne qualified for the finals by edging Westland John Glenn in overtime, while Belleville breezed past Cherry Hill 56-38 as Sam Villa sank a game high 15 points and Grantham chipped in with 13. Mixon hauled down 12 rebounds while Cullin and Steven Donaldson turned in exceptional defensive performances.

Sam Taylor, Cherry Hill's leading scorer during the regular season, collected nine points and Tracy Horne added 11.

Local bowlers win at Velvet tourney

Kerry MacCaffrey of Wayne and Dwayne Frink of Romulus both struck it lucky at Town and Country Lanes in Westland.

Baseball clinic dates are set

The first of a series of umpiring and managerial clinics to prepare for the Van Buren baseball season will be held between 10 a.m. and noon, Saturday, Jan. 12 at the Van Buren Township Hall.

"We're urging all those who wish to umpire or manage our teams this summer to attend these clinics," said George Roberts, who is in charge of the clinic. "We'll have speakers at the clinic who will bring with them more than 50 years of baseball experience."

A second clinic will be staged from 7 to 9 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 16, also in the Van Buren Township building.

Persons 15 years old and up — men and women — are invited to attend. The only cost is 60 cents for a new rules book. Further information may be obtained by telephoning 697-1641 or 697-0625.

MacCaffrey bowled a 264 and Frink bowled a 288 to become the weekly winners for Dec. 16-22 in the 50,000 Velvet Bowling program. MacCaffrey won women's division "Star of the Week" honors and Frink won the men's weekly title by bowling the highest scores of any league members at the 113 Detroit area bowling centers participating in the program.

A 54-handicap bowler, MacCaffrey is a member of the Pin Queens League. She is a resident of 33620 Clinton, Wayne. Frink is a 19-handicap bowler and a member of the Airlines League. He resides at 15118 Harrison, Romulus.

Each week's winners are automatically eligible to play in the Detroit area-wide Velvet Bowling tournament in May for prizes that include two new 1980 luxury automobiles and cash awards up to $3,000. The winners also receive a Velvet Bowling jacket, ball and bag.

Velvet Bowling is sponsored by Black Velvet Canadian Whisky and the Bowling Proprietors Association of Greater Detroit.

Jack's Sports Center buries Jake's Lounge

Exploding for seven goals, Jack's Sports Center chalked up its fourth victory of the season at the expense of Jake's Lounge to stay in a two-way tie for first place in the Berrington Division of the Over-30 Wayne-Westland Hockey League.

A goal early in the third period pulled Jake's within one, 3-2, of catching the league co-leaders, but the winners erupted for four straight counters to seal the decision, 7-2.

Ron Wojewski, the league's second leading scorer, paced the winner's assault with four goals while Ray Erickson, John Colligan and Dennis Wysocki each tallied once. It was Wysocki's first goal of the season.

On the scoresheet for Jake's were Nelson Vanderburgh and Ray Schmanske. In other action, Futurama Engineering turned in another defensive gem to outskate The Jock Shop, 3-1, and remain in undisputed control in the Bonkowski Division.

John Castellanos' two goals were the difference in this matchup. David Jones scored the third goal.

Keith Middaugh found the range with 1½ minutes left in the contest to rob goalie Tim Vanderburgh of his fifth shutout of the season.

Johnson Carbonic moved into second place, trailing Futurama by five points in the division, by burying Extra Point Bar 8-3. The winners were on the scoreboard six times before Extra Point broke the ice.

Nick Palise picked up his first hat trick of the season with Mike Dzuirgot, Jim Thomas, John Davis, Guy Moise and Ron Johnson all adding single tallies.

Barry Anderson had a pair of goals and Paul Cramer fired in the other for Extra Point.

Trailing 5-3 late into the second period, Brock Homes came from behind with four successive goals to jolt Tastee Freeze 7-5 as Layne Cardinal, Dave Zajac and Don Middaugh each scored two goals for the winners while Tom Dilaura collected the final one.

Terry Carley, the league's leading scorer, had a pair of goals for the losers to keep two up on Ron Wojewski and only one more than Ron Johnson. Carley has compiled 19 goals and 12 assists for a total of 31 points.

Rod Dittman fired in two goals and Dave Milan chipped in with one for Tastee Freeze.

champion in the 200 freestyle and rounded out a three-year career as a member of Coach Sam Vicchy's varsity team.

KUHR, only a sophomore, could become one of the finest swimmers ever to don a Tiger swim suit. The league champ in the 50-yard freestyle where she also was named as the conference's all-league selection, Laura was also picked as the top backstroke in that league and holds school records for the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke. She is a member of the record-setting freestyle relay team.

TRASKOS is a veteran swimmer who completed three years of varsity competition and helped set the Tiger record in the 400-yard freestyle. "She is a very competitive and an outstanding performer who has a lot of potential," Coach Vicchy commented.

KOBISH is another one of those swimmers who can handle all kinds of strokes. She placed in the Western Wayne meet, coming on strong in the 200-yard individual medley and the 500-yard freestyle events.

CLARK was the fourth member of the record-breaking relay team and, like her teammates, could be relied upon to swim in most events. She placed in the 200-yard and the 500 yard freestyle events in the conference as well as the Western Wayne. "She's an all-around swimmer and fortunately for us she's only a sophomore," said Coach Vicchy.

WHITTICO comes from a family of swimmers who have earned All-Area recognition in the past. Andrea qualified for the state meet in diving after picking up the Western Wayne Invitational crown. She placed fourth in the league. With two more years of competition ahead of her, fans will hear plenty about this young swimmer before she graduates.

VICCHY is the coach's daughter, and grew up around swimming pools. Lori, a sophomore, picked diving as her sport and has proven to be one of the best in the area. She earned a third place plaque at the Western Wayne and was named to the all-conference team after finishing third in that league.

LOPEZ returns to the All-Area squad after breaking the school mark in the 100-yard freestyle. "She's an excellent sprinter," said Wayne Coach Jim McPartlin, "and does very well in championship meets." Miss Lopez will return to the Zebra line-up next year. She's only a junior.

GRETCHEN BATTERSON brought the curtains down to a successful prep career as she set records in the 200 and 500 yard freestyle events. She is also a member of the 400-yard freestyle relay team that shattered the school mark. Gretchen was designated as the team captain and is an excellent student.

VANKEUREN, a sophomore, is a very disciplined swimmer who performs well under pressure. Considered an outstanding leader, Karen figures to be one of the top swimmers in the Great Lakes 8 Conference when she ends her career two years from now.

MONDOCHO also has earned All-Area recognition for the past two years and could become one of those rare talents that will be back on these pages next year. She holds the school's 50-yard freestyle record and anchored the 200-yard medley relay at the state meet.

MILES, described by Coach McPartlin as "an outstanding team leader with a great attitude toward success," also will be back in the Zebra line-up next year. She qualified for the state meet in the 200-yard medley relay.

BURNS is a sophomore who is an outstanding all-around swimmer and a hard worker. Sandy is a member of the record-setting freestyle relay team.

MASON, though a sophomore, got a taste of state competition when she KAREN SCARBOROUGH qualified in the 100-yard breaststroke, an event she set a school record in. A member of the medley relay team, Mary Jo excels not only in the pool but in the classroom as well.

CATHY BATTERSON will carry on the family tradition in competitive swimming for the next two years. Cathy holds the Wayne record for the 100-yard backstroke and also is a member of the 200-yard medley relay team. "She's just a great competitor and hard worker," Coach McPartlin said. Miss Batterson also made the trip to the state finals as a member of the 200-yard medley relay team.

And still be comforted by the fact that, whatever combination you pick, you'll get impressive gas mileage. Remember: Compare the "estimated MPG" to that of other cars. You may get different mileage, depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions, and trip length. Chevrolets are equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your Chevy dealer for details.

You don't have to get a foreign car to get good gas mileage. Chevy's got it.

Edward Greca, Judy Bricault wed at St. Thomas Church

In a pre-Christmas ceremony at St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church in Ann Arbor, Judith L. Bricault of 1073 Barton Dr., Ann Arbor, and Edward M. Greca of 429 Edgewood, Jackson were joined in holy matrimony.

The Rev. Edward Ertzbischoff presided at the double ring rite before some 50 assembled relatives and friends including parents of the young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Bricault of 812 Pomona, Ann Arbor, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Greca of 46912 Bemis Rd., Belleville.

Escorted to the sanctuary by her father, the bride was gown in an off-white lightweight knit dress designed with batwing sleeves cuffed in lace, a gathered waist with a self bow which tied at the back, and a small stand-up lace-trimmed collar above a V-shaped yolk.

In lieu of a veil she wore a coronet of fresh baby's breath in her hair and held a colonial bouquet of miniature white carnations, deep red sweetheart roses and baby's breath tied with off-white satin streamers.

As her sister's only attendant, Kathleen Bricault of Pinckney donned a deep wine street-length frock and tucked a small pink carnation and sprig of baby's breath in her hair. Competing her ensemble was a bouquet of miniature pink carnations and deep red sweetheart roses accented with baby's breath.

The bridegroom chose his brother, F. Anthony Greca of Ypsilanti, to serve as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bricault selected a floral print of pinks, golds and tans fashioned with a cowl neck and street-length skirt.

Mrs. Greca, the bridegroom's mother, appeared in a navy blue dress with a V-neckline, also in street length. Both were presented with corsages of pink sweetheart roses.

Following a buffet dinner and reception at the Holiday Inn East's Flaming Pit in Ann Arbor, the newlyweds took up residence at 429 Edgewood, Gillett's Lake, in Jackson.

The new Mrs. Greca and her husband are both registered nurses working at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti. She graduated from St. Thomas High School in Ann Arbor and St. Joseph Mercy School of Nursing in Detroit while he, an alumnus of Belleville High School, earned his RN degree at the University of Michigan School of Nursing.

Suburban Living Editor

So much has been written (already) about the proposed demolition of the J. L. Hudson store in downtown Detroit that I almost feel guilty pursuing the subject any further. BUT — when something of J.L.H.'s stature has played a memorable role in one's life, one does have to add another two-cents worth to the ongoing dialogue.

As far back as I can remember, Hudson's was part of my life even though I lived in an area not even considered suburbia at the time and at a distance of at least an hour's drive.

Having had a misguided tooth threaten to do irreparable harm to my mouth, my good parents took the recommendation of their dentist (situated on Michigan Avenue on Detroit's west side) and marched me off to an orthodontist on the perimeter of Grand Circus Park, no less. In those days, we were completely Detroit-oriented and never even gave Ann Arbor's much-closer facilities a thought.

So it was that each week, EVERY single Thursday, I was trotted off to "the City" for my session with the big toothman which practically ALWAYS led to an afternoon at Hudson's.

Lunch was usually on the mezzanine until we discovered that 13th floor dining room with its panoramic view of what the French had discovered so many years before.

It was always fun going with my mother but her itinerary most weeks meant a stop at Edson-Moore's, a wholesale warehouse which I ABHORED (and which I would give my eyeteeth to have access to today.)

The REALLY super Thursdays came, though, when my Aunt Clara chanced to be my chauffeur and chaperone for the day . . . an all-day session it would be . . . and one of marathon eating. YUM!

We'd always start our gourmandry with breakfast — WAFFLES — at the Mayflower Coffee Shop on Woodward; AFTER I'd had my 8:30 session (which included an impression of my mouth with a hot, putty-like substance which always made me gag.)

Then we'd skip over to Hudson's and escalate ourselves from floor to floor — the millinery department being among the most loved. At luncheon we'd leave for an hour or so to dine at French Village which then cornered on Woodward and Michigan in a divinely intriguing rathskeller-like atmosphere. In the quaint, basement setting with its red and white checked tablecloths, travel-postered walls and bereted waitresses, we'd opt for the French version of chicken pie. The thrill of completing our meal came, tho, when the check was presented. For if the tab, which you tore off and dipped into your glass of water said so, you got your meal compliments of the house.

Then it was back to the super department store for even more shopping, browsing . . . and . . . eating. There were always ice cream-waffle sandwiches to devour, lemonade in the summertime, hot chocolate in the winter, bags of hot roasted nuts or popcorn and ALWAYS a carton of goodies (brownies, cream puffs, etc.) to cart from the baked shop. And you always had to cross over to that "other" section of Hudson's to find it.

Those were the days of my youth. As a teen-ager and secretary to the television buyer in the now-defunct Ernest Kern Co., I spent my lunch hours running across to Hudson's for its advertised bargains and, usually, a few chunks of marvelous fudge.

Then came the day when BG and I decided to tie the knot and I had the thrill of selecting my china, silver, crystal and the likes from literally DOZENS of designs. Tables were intricately appointed in a House and Garden mode which only J.L.H. could do.

And when our daughter was to be married, it was DOWNTOWN Hudson's we visited for her selections — a mere five years ago that it STILL maintained a little elegance and prestige.

When the big holiday season of the year rolled around, we took first Lu and then Sue and eventually Carol to visit the REAL Santa Claus . . . in J.L.H.'s glittery wonderland. The older two had a few more visits with the man who made the Thanksgiving Day parade famous — Carol eventually having to make the scene at a local mall.

The one year we recall as outstanding, though, (and particularly for a proud daddy) was when Lu was a pretty golden-locked six and Susie a saucy 2-year-old. It was the era of black tights and black patent shoes for little girls who were then dressed in smocked calico frocks complete with can-can slips to flounce them out — that favorite-of-mine-over-the-years look.

As it happened, the two girls and I were making our way through the fourth floor waiting room after checking coats with dad lagging behind just far enough to pick up the complimentary flack from those resting along the sidelines . . . "What darling little girls" . . . "How cute!" . . . "Look at those curls . . . those outfits . . . those faces." . . . Well, I'll tell you, BG was fairly bursting his seams!

Santa conferences at the big store were always followed by stops at the "For Kids Only Shop" where prices were (supposedly) geared to a little one's pocketbook. After a couple years of too small a moneybelt, we suggested a more interesting place for the girls to spend their nickels and dimes — S.S. Kresge's at Westgate in Dearborn enroute home.

With their miniature purchases neatly bagged and in hand, we then made our way to the upstairs dining room where little packets of crayons and placemats to color vied for importance with the ice cream cone clowns which were a must for dessert.

Alas, those are the fond, fond memories of Hudson's — the final ones being the three days we spent downtown during Bert's year as Kiwanis president and the club's convention at Cobo Hall. Once again, we "women-folk" found ourselves "doing" Hudson's which had just begun to lose its luster — many of its most enticing spots being closed off or completely boarded up; in particular, the nostalgic section which once boasted hundreds of exciting Easter bonnets and other headgear for m'lady.

And the very last time BG and I ventured forth (seeking a particular item which we were sure we'd find at the wonderful old emporium) we returned home most disillusioned. Not only were entire floors closed off and those wonderful big, big departments diminished but there was a pervading feeling of doom — one men's section completely walled off and turn-stiled for maximum security from nearby elevators and skip-away thefts.

And a feeling of fear — too many nondescripts nonchalantly loitering in the men's room and in less busy aislesways — too many unsavory characters making their way through those once meaningful "Aisles of Beauty" — aisles which no longer held the glamour, allure and excitement which had made a little girl and eventually her own little girls feel like a princess in a glass-and-gold fairyland.

Fortunately, it's the good, wonderful old memories and feelings about the J. L. Hudson Company which prevail.

And — if and when that giant of stores meets the wrecking ball — we'll tune into all the nice things we remember; the disappointment and disillusionment never having happened.

LET ME CAUTION YOU, GALS — If, perchance, you are in the throes of planning a party and thinking of sending invitations via the U. S. Mail, take care in choosing the little missives. Size is all important these days and requirements call for nothing smaller than 3 1/2 x 5 inches.

I got caught! Halfway through addressing shower envelopes, the old lightbulb went off and, hopping up, I screeched to the old expert himself ("Himself" being in the business), "I'll just bet this is too small, isn't it?"

"If it's under 3 1/2 x 5, it is," he answered. Guess you got a bargain on invitations and guess whose little gems measured 3 1/4 x 4 1/4? RIGHT!

Whoever made the brilliant deduction that Bert Parks was "too old" to sing anymore has to be the biggest dope in town! Corny and schmaltzy as the Miss America Pageant may be, we all watch it while muttering complaints but never about dear ol' Bert.

He IS the Miss America Pageant — and tradition — and replacing him with some youngster is like substituting Donny Osmond for George Burns in "Oh, God".

Wonder what the age of the big decision-maker is . . . wanna take bets that he thinks he's being cool?

THE BOTTOM LINE: You never get a second chance to make a good first impression.

On New Year's Eve Jerry and Irene Maton celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home on Beckley Road. Relatives and friends to the number of 30 partook of a bountiful buffet meal at 8:30 p.m. and enjoyed greeting the New Year together.

Guests were present from Plymouth, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Belleville. The young man, who has been named Michael Ray, is fortunate in having not only other grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guzowski of Garden City, but three great-grandmothers, Mrs. Frances Gross of Dearborn Heights, Mrs. Dora Chretien of Garden City and Mrs. Anna Guzowski of Hamtramck.

The new mother, Vicki, being unable to be present at the family's annual Christmas event, the proud father and great-grandmothers took Santa (who was an uncle, Sam Behringer from Grosse Pointe Woods and journeyed to the hospital where Santa not only brought pleasure to his niece but also visited all the other new mothers who couldn't be home for Christmas. Vicki and baby, Michael returned home Christmas night.

Make breakfast special

When a leisurely breakfast is in order, it's good to know you can enjoy it with a minimum of preparation. Reach into your kitchen cupboard for a package of Log Cabin buttermilk pancake and waffle mix and a bottle of Log Cabin syrup, and have the makings for a veritable feast.

For this festive Sausage-in-a-Basket, simply combine the mix with milk and add crushed Post raisin bran for texture.

Wrap each pancake around a cooked sausage, and top with fruity Cranberry-Pineapple Syrup. As an added benefit, three sausage-pancakes provide one-third of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of protein and a significant source of three B-vitamins, Iron and vitamin A.

Sausage-in-a-Basket
1 cup buttermilk pancake and waffle mix
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon liquid shortening
1 cup bran flakes with raisins, crushed
12 cooked sausage links
Cranberry-Pineapple Syrup
Prepare pancake mix with egg, milk and shortening as directed on package, adding cereal to batter after beating. Bake. Roll warm pancakes around sausages and serve at once or keep warm. Serve with Cranberry-Pineapple Syrup. Makes 12 pancakes.

Cranberry-Pineapple Syrup. Combine 1 cup pancake and waffle syrup and 1/2 cup raw cranberries in saucepan. Bring to a boil and simmer for 5 minutes. Add 1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple in juice, drained, and a dash of salt. Serve warm. Makes 1-3/4 cups.

New babies on scene

There's a new great-grandchild on the family tree of Cora Bradshaw of Bedell Street, Belleville — a baby girl born to her granddaughter, Wendy Smith Nieland, and her husband, Dan of Owosso.

An early Christmas present for the couple, little Corey Anne made her debut at 6 a.m. Dec. 23 at Owosso Memorial Hospital, her weight being recorded at 5 lbs., 8 ozs.

Corey is also the great-grandchild of Mrs. Mary Nieland of Bradenton, Fla. and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Smith of Quirk Road, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Nieland of Cheboygan.

The birth of a baby daughter is being announced by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cotner of Farm Road, Belleville. Making her debut Dec. 11 at University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Catherine Lynn Cotner weighed in at an even eight pounds.

Her mother is the former Emily Greca, daughter of the Donald Greecas of Bemis Road, Belleville.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

America is a musical country. About 34 million Americans play musical instruments and it is believed that this number will continue to grow. According to recent surveys, approximately 74 percent of those playing an instrument do so for their own personal pleasure. Eight percent play because they expect to be able to make a living from it. The piano remains the most popular instrument to play, with the electric guitar running about third. Although classical, country and other forms are studied, rock music is the most popular kind of music being played.

NEW VOTERS
There are about 31,000,000 Americans potentially qualified to vote for the first time in this fall's election, some by virtue of the lowering of the voting age, others by the Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970, plus those 21 to 24 year olds who have become eligible since the last presidential election.

People are almost unanimous in their approval of Associated Newspapers Classified Ads. That's because they get results they like... cash for good things they no longer need. So when you have something you'd like to sell, (look around now), dial 729-3300 and get fast action.

Hilberry to stage 'Macbeth'

"Macbeth," one of Shakespeare's best known tragedies, will officially join the Hilberry repertory on January 30 at 8:30 p.m., following previews January 25 and 26. It will remain in the regular repertory through March 7, with high school matinees scheduled through April 17.

"Macbeth," probably written in 1606, is Shakespeare's shortest tragedy, moving swiftly to bring about Macbeth's terrible end. It is highly theatrical, with its ghosts, prophecies, supernatural beings and ominous atmosphere.

G. B. Harrison, in describing "Macbeth," says: "To a greater extent than the other tragedies 'Macbeth' is a tragedy of fate... there's a divinity that shapes our ends.... Macbeth's character is a mixture of good and evil qualities. He has bravery and nobility counterbalanced by ambition. Above all he is controlled by an overpowering imagination which makes him see not only what the results of an action will be, but also its essential meaning."

Leading the cast of the Hilberry production are John Morgan Lund as Macbeth and Terri Turner Phillips as Lady Macbeth. Also in the cast are Buckner Gibbs as Duncan, Mark Tymchyshyn as Malcolm, Wm. Neil Dalley as Donalbain, Von Washington as Banquo, Andrew Barnicle as Macduff, Sara Morrison Barnicle as Lady Macduff, Elizabeth Gulick-Eastman as Hecate, and Edith Taylor Hunter, Kristin Reeves-Beauchamp and Beth Taylor as the witches.

The production is directed by Robert Emmett McGill, with scenery by Russell Smith, costumes by Jackie Durbin, and lighting by Gary M. Witt.

Tickets and information may be obtained by contacting the Wayne State University Theatre box office at Cass and Hancock, Detroit 48202, or by calling 577-2972. Tickets also are available through J. L. Hudson's ticket offices and most Detroit area colleges and universities.

COVER

Michigan Tech University students challenge the artistry of Mother Nature with their spectacular ice sculptures for their annual Winter Carnival.

'Here, Now' opens at Studio

"Starting Here, Starting Now," a musical revue by Richard Maltby, Jr. and David Shire, opens at the Wayne State University Studio Theatre on Wednesday, January 23, at 8:30 p.m. Performances are scheduled Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8:30 through February 2, with a matinee on Thursday, January 31, at 4:30 p.m.

"Starting Here, Starting Now" brings together songs from a number of musicals written by Maltby and Shire. At the heart of their material is an active, intelligent optimism about life and love, and it is very much in touch with the realities of modern life. New York Times critic Clive Barnes said of this revue, "... As a cabaret, this is a good show. It is a cheerful, even rewarding way to spend the evening." Songs from the show have been recorded by such artists as Roberta Flack, Barbara Streisand, Pearl Bailey, Robert Goulet and Andy Williams.

"Starting Here, Starting Now," is directed by Philip Fox, with musical direction by Philip J. Micheal, sets and lighting by Wm. McConnell Bozman and costumes by Dianne Cooley. In the cast are Kathy Brant, Marc Ciokajlo, Dennis Green, Lisa Grimm, Philip J. Micheal, Jenny Roberts, Robert Stormont, Randy L. Swansey, Robert Tye, Dennis Wrosch, and Sandra Prappas. Proceeds from this production will benefit the Blakely Scholarship Fund for undergraduate students.

Further information and tickets for "Starting Here, Starting Now" are available from the Wayne State University Theatre box office at Cass and Hancock, Detroit, 48202, phone 577-2972.

PBS series looks at the presidency

Correspondent Howard K. Smith looks at the nature of the presidency and how Americans view the office on "Every Four Years," which premieres Wed., Jan. 23, at 9:00 p.m. on Channel 56.

This three-part series, which includes interviews with President Carter and former Presidents Nixon and Ford, provides an interesting look at an office that is sometimes hated, revered and feared—but never ignored.

Part I looks at how Americans look at the presidency and the type of person they think should be President. A special Gallup survey was commissioned for the series to answer these and other questions.

How presidential power is acquired and used is shown in Part II. It reveals how the office has grown and shows the many roles the president plays.

Part III looks at White House aides; they are some of the most powerful people in the country—yet they aren't elected. John Erlichman, Clark Clifford and Joseph Califano join Smith for a look at the growth and power of "the President's men."

"Every Four Years" marks journalist Howard K. Smith's first major TV appearance since he left ABC News. A broadcast journalist for more than 30 years, Smith anchored or co-anchored every presidential convention, election and inauguration for the last 12 years.

'Contact' premieres

Science and technology and their relation to everyday life are illustrated in "3-2-1 Contact," a new series aimed at 8-to-12-year olds. It will be shown on Channel 56 weekdays at 4:00 p.m. beginning Jan. 21.

"3-2-1 Contact" seeks to arouse the curiosity of youngsters in the natural and technological world through animation, celebrity appearances and mini-documentaries. The program dramatizes the scientific principles underlying the human activities around us in unexpected places like balloon races, surfing and figure skating.

In addition, three young hosts who anchor the show travel throughout North America to explore natural phenomena at places like the Bay of Fundy, a coral reef off the Florida Keys and a Hawaiian volcano.

"3-2-1 Contact" also uses a mini-mystery series segment to explore themes like "fast and slow," "order and disorder" and "communications."

"3-2-1 Contact" can be used in conjunction with regular classroom instruction. Each Friday's programs highlight the week's shows.

Winter in Michigan: It's exciting

They really pull in some big ones, according to some of the fish stories that evolve from the ice fishing contests at Tip-Up Town, U.S.A., Houghton Lake.

Contrary to some opinions, winter in Michigan is a season of exciting events and exhilarating fun. It's every kind of winter sport you can think of — and some we thought up — plus a full program of family style festivals and events.

Probably the best known, and surely one of Michigan's most popular, ice covered events is Houghton Lake's, "Tip-Up Town, USA" (January 18-20, 26-27). "Tip-Up Town" was originated some 30 years ago by a handful of ice fishermen. Today it is rated among the top 10 winter festivals in the nation.

While activities still center around ice fishing contests and prize winning catches of pike, bass and panfish, the list of "non-fishy" things to do is long and varied. There are parades, dances, golf tournaments on the ice, balloon rides and parachute jumps and "The largest snowmobile safari in the world." There is something for everyone and all with one purpose, as stated in the "Tip-Up Town" bylaws: "to promote bigger lies, hilarity, Tom Follery and good will."

Perchville USA, February 1-3, at Tawas-East Tawas, is another event that was originally inspired by ice fishing. The most popular tradition of Perchville, however, is the Polar Bear Swim, an invigorating dip in the frigid, February waters of Tawas Bay by the hardest — or fool hardest — festival goers. In the beginning, participants "took the plunge" on a dare for a reward of $20. Today it's all for the "goose bumped" honor of membership in the Polar Bear Club.

Perchville also encompasses a host of less daring activities and events, many planned especially for the younger generation. And, overall, a lighthearted spirit and carnival atmosphere.

The creative ice sculptures that highlight the annual Michigan Tech Winter Carnival, February 1-10, Houghton, attract hundreds of visitors from all parts of the country to the campus of this Upper Peninsula University. The sculpture competition is a serious business among the school's sororities and fraternities and students spend many, many cold, arduous hours packing, molding and carving their incredible creations of snow and water. The results are truly spectacular.

In toto, it's a full week of high jinx and high spirited activity that includes skiing, hockey, an original stage revue and sled dog races without dogs.

The Harrison Mardi Gras, December 26-January 1, is one of Michigan's younger winter events. Centered around snowmobiling, the festival concentrates on family participation. Organized activities include snowmobile safaris, treasure hunts and races and a wild 'n wooly "snodo". There is cross country skiing too, and a friendly bonfire and sing along.

The Harrison area is dotted with lakes and invested with acres of forest and wilderness which provides miles and miles of tranquil, scenic trails.

The Mardi Gras de Snow, January 18-20, Paradise and Grayling's Winter Sports Carnival, February 8-10 and 15-17 are also popular, full-of-fun snowmobile oriented festivals.

Oh yes, the North wind doth blow and we do have snow, but in Michigan we make a playmate out of ole man Winter. If you would like to join in, write for the Winter Calendar of Travel Events. It's free, from the Michigan Travel Bureau, P.O. Box 30226, Lansing, 48909. For Michigan ski and snowmobile conditions, call toll free: 800-292-2520.

Channel 56 gains state grant

The Michigan State Legislature has awarded a $340,000 grant to the Detroit Educational Television Foundation, the licensee of WTVS-Channel 56, on behalf of all public broadcasting stations in Michigan. The monies will be used to buy electronic equipment to enable the stations to transmit programs statewide and nationally via satellite.

This is the first state grant of money ever awarded to WTVS-56.

Acquisition of the new electronic equipment is the initial step toward a future, full-fledged Michigan Public Broadcasting Network connecting all of the state's public radio and television stations. Such interconnection, already a fact in Florida, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and other states, makes possible live, cooperative broadcasting of events having statewide or even national interest.

It also gives Channel 56 and other Michigan public broadcasting stations the chance to show the new-found energy and vitality of the "Detroit Renaissance" during the Republican National Convention.

"Since convention coverage will originate from Detroit," said WTVS President and General Manager Jack Caldwell,

"we recognize the importance of being able to provide facilities for live, direct relay of events to the state and the nation. That is why we made the decision to pursue the equipment grant."

The new equipment will make WTVS capable of directly feeding live coverage to the nation's 282 public TV stations via the public television satellite.

Installation of the new transmission equipment at Channel 56's existing earth terminal in Rochester is the key to transmitting television and radio programming to the satellite, which reflects it back to public stations in the state of Michigan and nationwide.

Currently, each time a public television station transmits out of its immediate area, it must lease phone lines (at great expense) to feed programs to the nearest public transmission uplinks in either Lincoln, Nebraska, or Washington, D.C.

It is expected that when a Michigan Public Broadcasting Network is created, the satellite transmission equipment will be moved to Michigan State University's Telecommunication Center in East Lansing.

Rogoff premieres with DSO

Herbert Blomstedt will be on the podium as pianist Ilan Rogoff makes his debut with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on January 10 and 12 at Ford Auditorium. The Thursday and Saturday evening performances are at 8:30 p.m.

The program will include Schubert-Liszt's Wanderer Fantasy and Bruckner's Symphony No. 4.

Tickets for both concerts (January 10 and 12) are available at the Ford Auditorium Box Office at $11.00, $9.00, $8.00, $7.00 and $5.00. Master Charge and VISA charge card customers may phone in orders at 962-5524. In addition, a limited number of tickets for students and senior citizens at $2.00 will be available one hour prior to the concerts.

Pianist ILAN ROGOFF was born in Tel-Aviv to a family of musicians. He studied with Karol Klein at the Tel-Aviv Academy, making his first appearance with the Orchestra at the age of 12. He continued his studies with Stefan Askenase at the Royal Conservatoire in Brussels and with Leonard Shure in New York, where he was later coached by Claudio Arrau and Valdimir Horowitz.

In 1970, Rogoff debuted with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, and that appearance was soon followed by engagements visiting European orchestras in the U.S. and with the Boston, Baltimore, Minnesota, and St. Louis Symphony Orchestras.

Since taking residence in London in 1973, he has appeared regularly with the leading British orchestras, in recital and on BBC Radio and Television. He is best known to American audiences through his piano performances of the music of Frederic Chopin on the PBS-TV showing of the BBC-TV Masterpiece Theatre series "Notorious Woman" (the life of George Sand). This is his first appearance with the DSO.

Born in 1927, HERBERT BLOMSTEDT completed his studies in conducting, piano, violin, organ and music education at the Royal Music Academy of Stockholm as well as music theory at the University of Uppsala. In the following years, he received training through repeated visits to the International Summer Course for Conducting at the Salzburg Mozartium with Igor Markevitch, and visits to the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Juilliard School of Music in New York, and Tanglewood with Leonard Bernstein. He also participated in the International Summer Course for New Music in Darmstadt and studied the performance of old music at the "Schola Cantorum" in Basel.
